NAPANEE DISTRICT W.M.S. CONVENTION

The nineteenth annual convention of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Napanee District (Napanee Division) convened in Anderson's Church, Bay Circuit, on Tuesday, Sept. 23rd, 1913, the organizer of the District, Mrs. M. S. Madole, presiding with Mrs. George I. Perry, District Secretary.

A long and carefully prepared programme rendered the day not only enjoyable, but profitable.

The two sessions were well attended and the interest sustained throughout.

The opening exercises of the morning session were conducted by Rev. Nickle, pastor of the circuit.

Appointments followed—Press Reporter, Mrs. Fraser, Courtesy Committee, Miss L. Anderson and Mrs. J. B. Miller.

Reports of Auxiliaries, Circles, and Bands were then asked for. Every Auxiliary responded and all showed good work had been accomplished during the first half of the year.

Our thirteen Auxiliaries have raised since May, $415.42. They take in all 200 Outpicks, 102 Reports and 50 monthly letters.

Three Circles responded to call.

The reports from Superintendents of Cradle Roll, Associate Helpers, and Christian Stewardship were encouraging.

Words of greeting were extended by Mrs. A. C. Parks, giving all a cordial welcome to Bay Circuit and Anderson's Church, praying that this convention would be a blessing to all.

Mrs. W. G. Fretts, of Hawley, very ably responded.

Business—Mrs. M. S. Madole was re-nominated as District Organizer and Mrs. G. I. Perry, Morven, was elected District Secretary.

Morven Circle then favored the audience with a musical selection, "Be a Light," after which Mrs. Bruce Robertson, Sillsville, gave an instructive paper on Mission study. What does Mission study mean to us as members of the W.M.S.? Is its full meaning summed up in a sermon once a year by our Pastor? A meeting together for an hour or two (the greater part of which is spent in conducting business) with a study book that perhaps has never been opened since the last meeting. This along with a little Watch Tower from herald's who are sometimes present and just as often not, and an occasional reading pretty much consists of our course of study.

Now how could any auxiliary pursuing this course just mentioned become interested and gain a proper conception of the importance and magnitude of this the most important work in all Christendom. The vital need is a greater realization of the evangelization of the world for Christ and this can only be brought about by a deeper sense of knowledge gained through study along with a prayerful spirit. "Not by might nor by power, but by my spirit saith the Lord of

MR. HAWKES MESQUOTED

There is, ever, one fly in the ointment result of the initial meeting. Hawkes was widely reported as clearing that the question of national defence should be tried at a general election.

Mr. Hawkes, in a statement to the press yesterday, says that made no such statement and that the contrary such procedure was opposed to the policy of the league.

"My speech contained a warning against throwing the matter of national defence, on which there should be national unity before the way into a general election in which the people of Canada might be aided of disloyalty by the other hand said Mr. Hawkes yesterday.

FARMERS' ROADS FIRST

After That the Auto Highway Says U. S. Secretary.

Agricultural Chief In Wilson's Cabinet Urges Development of Routes to the Nearest Town and Market
In Preference to Transcontinental Roads—Doubtful of Federal Aid.

DETROIT, Sept. 30.—Secretary
Houston of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, in an address before the American Road Congress yesterday, expressed his approval of the efforts of the organization and explained the interest of the Federal Government with reference to great transcontinental highways for automobilists, and at the same time he said he did not under-estimate the valuable service rendered by auto-cabillists in the propaganda for road building.

“The suggestion of great national transcontinental roads appeals to my imagination, as does the suggestion of interstate roads, connecting capitals or cities of commercial importance, to my logical faculty and to the sense of pleasure that I experience in riding about the country in my friends' automobiles. But that the essential thing to be done is the providing of good roads which shall get products from the community farms to the nearest station and make rural life more profitable, comfortable, pleasurable, I entertain no sort of doubt;
and it is obvious that the representatives of the people in congress are like-minded.

“That the suggestion of federal aid to road building raises grave questions and involves possible dangers no thoughtful citizens doubt.” There are proposals before the public mind which would bankrupt the federal treasury and suggest possible abuses before which those of the worst pork barrel bills of the past would pale into insignificance.

Other speakers before the congress yesterday included: Logan Waller Page, president of the American Highway Association, and A. W.
Campbell, Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals in Canada.

Mr. Campbell outlined the Canadian prospective Federal legislation to aid in the construction of principal roads, as submitted at the last session of Parliament, and said that interest in the highways movement had not terminated with the differences of political opinion which occurred over the terms of the measure of last spring.

Mr. Campbell impressed upon the congress the important of planning in a comprehensive way for the requirements of the state, the class of roads necessary, the materials to use and how to use them. He emphasized the maintenance problem and urged that construction should not be undertaken without providing adequate and systematized methods of maintenance—“protecting the people's investment,” he called it.

Mr. C. A. McGrath and his fellow-commissioners, Messrs. McLean and Rankin, of the Ontario Board, are in attendance at the congress and have embarked on a busy week, gathering information and data from various sources. They are accompanied by Hon. Dr. Reaume, Provincial Minister of Public Works, and as a result of the facts which they are now tabulating it is not improbable that recommendations of a very comprehensive character may be made.

TO BE LAW THIS WEEK.

U. S. Tariff Measure Is Back In Lower House.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. — The Democratic tariff revision bill was advanced to its last congressional stage yesterday when it was brought back to the House from the joint conference committee with the unanimous endorsement of the Democratic confererees.

Leaders in both Houses of Congress were confident last night that the bill, practically complete now, would be signed by President Wilson before the end of this week. It will scarcely leave the centre of the stage
before, the currency bill, next in line, will be forced upon the attention of the country and coincident with this will begin the administration work upon the anti-trust and railroad control programs that are to be brought forward when the December session opens.

President Wilson is satisfied that with the tariff bill out of the way Congress will take up the currency question prepared to dispose of it before adjournment.

The tariff conference report went to the House yesterday soon after that body convened at noon.

The House will take up the tariff bill at 11 o'clock to-day, and it is believed that it will be passed before adjournment. It is expected to reach the Senate Wednesday and to pass
that body by Thursday.

The cotton futures tax is still in dispute, the House refusing to accept the so-called Clarke amendment adopted by the Senate. Expressions from the White House and from Congressional leaders yesterday, however,
indicate that in the final conference
over this feature the whole plan might be dropped from the tariff bill and taken up as a separate measure next winter.

WINS TRIPLE VICTORY.

Sulzer's Lawyers Are Upheld By the High Court.

ALBANY, N.Y., Sept. 30.—Governor
Sulzer yesterday won a triple victory over his accusers at the trial of his impeachment.

Presiding Judge Cullen of the High Court barred the introduction of evidence to prove that the governor had made a corrupt political bargain with Assemblyman Patrie of Greene County, and held that the evidence brought forward to show that he had made similar bargains with other assemblymen was incompetent.

The legislation had to do in each case with improvements which the assemblymen had advocated in bills subsequently passed by the Legislature to which they were desirous of getting the governor's signature.

In the Patrie case, however, no charges were brought in the articles of impeachment, and it was on this ground that presiding Judge Cullen threw the charge out of court.

COMPLIMENT TO CANADA.

Col. Hughes Extends Britain's Welcome to Guests.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Most of the Canadian officers who attended the army manoeuvres return home at the end of this week. The party visited Woolwich yesterday and to-day goes to the Hythe School of Musketry, and to-morrow will be the guests of the Admiralty at Plymouth.

Hon. Col. Hughes is yet undecided as to the date of his return, being busy with War Office conferences.

A notable compliment was extended to the Dominion service at the army council dinner to the foreign and overseas services. Sir John French requested Hon. Col. Hughes to welcome the foreign representatives on behalf of the British Government, being the first time such a pleasurable duty has been entrusted to a Dominion representative.

Agreement Is Dissolved.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—A practical dissolution has taken place of the Chinese loan agreement, by which the five powers concerned, Great Britain, France, Germany, Russia and Japan, gave a monopoly to certain banking groups for all Chinese loans, and from which the United States Government withdrew its support.

The British Government took the initiative in the dissolution of the agreement because of the failure of the other powers to observe its spirit.

Montreal's Crazy Firebug.

MONTREAL, Sept. 30.—Damage to the extent of $500,000 has been done to property here during a month's operations by an incendiary. Up to yesterday this firebug had contented himself with firing factory premises, but yesterday morning he started blazes in seven houses on St. Paul street.

The police have received a description of the incendiary and once he was caught by a janitor of a building in which he was operating, though after a desperate struggle he managed to escape. The police think the man is insane.

Chinese Pirates Active.

VANCOUVER, Sept. 30.—The C. P. R. liner Empress of Russia, Captain Beetham, which arrived from the Orient at five o'clock Saturday afternoon, brings word of piratical outrages on the Chinese River. These celestial bad men have been very active of late, taking advantage of the trouble between the Government and the rebels, and it has been left for British and American gunboats to escort river steamers up the west river and the Yangtze Kiang.

Tossed By Railway Train.

KINGSTON, Sept. 30.—Edward Farmer, night watchman at Anglin's lumber mills, was struck by a Grand Trunk suburban train as he was crossing the tracks near the mill at eight o'clock yesterday morning. Farmer had a miraculous escape from death, being thrown several feet. He was picked up for dead, but on examination it was found he had only suffered slight injuries.

case with improvements which the assemblymen had advocated in bills subsequently passed by the Legislature to which they were desirous of getting the governor's signature.

In the Patlie case, however, no charges were brought in the articles of impeachment, and it was on this ground that presiding Judge Cullen threw the charge out of court.

The other cases were specified in article 8 of the impeachment.

With the introduction of evidence of three more campaign contributions not reported in the governor's statement of campaign receipts, and of more evidence concerning the governor's alleged Wall street speculations, the assembly managers drew near the end of their case yesterday.

MINISTERS SILENT.

They Will Not Divulge Decision Regarding Gibson.

OTTAWA, Sept. 30.—The case of Charles Gibson, sentenced to hang for the murder of Joseph Rosenthal and to whom a reprieve was granted until Oct. 9, was considered in Cabinet Council yesterday afternoon. The result of the deliberation was not, however, divulged and Ministers refused to speak on the matter.

The administrator, Sir Charles Fitzpatrick, is still absent from the city, but is expected back to-day. If any order-in-council has been passed it will not be announced until he has placed his signature to it. It is generally understood that the Minister of Justice has recommended that the law takes its course, and that Gibson expiate his crime on the gallows. This is believed also to be the impression of the majority of the members of the Cabinet who have read the evidence. However, it is seldom that sentence of death is carried out once a reprieve has been granted, and those who defend Gibson still have hope of a new trial or commutation of sentence.

ADMITS BRUTAL CRIME.

Philadelphia Man Confesses To Slaying Boy.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—Joseph O'Brien, who was arrested Saturday night on suspicion of having attacked and killed seven-year-old Israel Goldman, and then thrown his nude body among some bushes on the golf links of the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club, yesterday confessed that he had committed the crime, according to the police.

O'Brien, the police announced, admitted having taken the boy to the outskirts, where the deed was committed, after a street car conductor had identified him as the man who was with the boy Friday night. According to the police, the prisoner said he had killed the child because he had called his (O'Brien's) mother a foul name.

The murder of the child was a particularly brutal one. His head was battered, there were bruises all over the body and a shoestring was tightly drawn about the neck when the body was found on Saturday morning. The boy's clothes lay near the scene of the crime.

Prince Arthur as Governor-General?

LONDON, Sept. 30.—(C. A. P. Cable.)—A writer in The Daily Sketch yesterday said:

"I can confirm on very high authority statements made late"—that Prince Arthur of Connaught will ultimately succeed his father as Governor-General of Canada.

"This is one of the reasons for his marriage being hurried forward, since it was made a condition when the appointment was first offered him that he must be married before he took it over."

Larger Subsidies This Year.

In subsidies to steamships the Canadian Government will pay this year $2,238,600. For this sum the mails are carried free, and freight and passenger service maintained on the ocean and coastal routes for the development of foreign and domestic trade.

The principal service is that on the Atlantic between Canada and Great Britain. Under the new contract made this year the government is paying $1,000,000 annually for a tri-weekly service performed by 12 steamships, instead of $600,000 a year for a weekly service by four steamships, as formerly. The new contract is with four companies: The Allans, the C. P. R., the Canadian Northern and the White Star-Dominion Line. In former years the contract was with the Allans, who divided up the subsidy and sailings with the Canadian Pacific.

On the Pacific there are several ocean service contracts, chief of which is that between Vancouver and Hong Kong, China, with calls both ways at Yokohama, Japan. This service is performed by the Canadian Pacific Co., the yearly subsidy being $225,000, of which Canada pays $125,000 and Great Britain $100,000.

A subsidy of $180,000 yearly is paid for a monthly service between Vancouver and Auckland, New Zealand, 6,366 miles.

Popularizing Manufactures.

Long years ago some card firm in England got out a series of very beautiful cards with fantastic pictures, to charm the fancy of children and to impress upon their minds what the great towns of England were famous for in manufacturing. It might be a good thing if some firm would do the same for Canada. A new parlor game might be devised, quite as exciting as "Authors" or "Old Maid." For instance:

What town makes the best clothing in Canada?

How many cities manufacture sugar?

Where is the best fanning mill made?

How many people are required to make a self-binder?

What town makes the most breakfast foods?

Why are locomotives made in Canada when pins are not?

There might be hundreds of other questions that would be as bewildering to parents as to children. But if the manufacturers care to start a campaign of popular education they might get up such an interest that even the "movies" would begin to put on factory shows.

Did He Know How to Spell It?

A few days ago a fire occurred in the stereotype room of one of Toronto's large printing offices, and after it was out Policeman XX31 came in to make inquiries and write out a report.

"What do you think was the cause of the fire?" he asked.

"Spontaneous combustion," replied the manager.

"We'll put it down as an overheated furnace," said the policeman.

Keeping the Body in Repair

Nature intended that the body should do its own repairing—and it would do so were it not for the fact that most of us live other than a natural life.

Nature didn't intend that we should wear corsets, tight collars or shoes, nor live in badly ventilated and draughty houses, nor eat and drink some of the things that we do, nor ride in street cars when we should walk.

The consequence is that the body when it gets out of order must look for outside help to make the necessary repairs.

HON. MR. ROGERS ON DECK.

WILL DIRECT TORY CAMPAIGN IN CHATEAUGUAY BY-ELECTION.

After four months of vacillation and secret preparation, the Borden government has at last decided to face the electors in two of the four vacant ridings. On October 11th the electors of Chateauguy and on the 21st those of East Middlesex will be called upon to pronounce their judgment on the present government's record.

Hon. Mr. Rogers, who might be called Mr. Borden's "Minister of Elections," since his chief claim to distinction in the cabinet is his boast that he can win elections, is taking charge of the campaign and everyone knows he is not scrupulous as to the method by which he wins campaigns.

Special efforts are being made by the government to win Chateauguy in the hope of being able to point to this as a gain from the Liberal ranks, since Mr. Brown's majority at last election was only 40. East Middlesex has been continuously Tory since Confederation and therefore will not require such expensive governmental nursing. Already Hon. Mr. Rogers has visited Montreal several times and has been in conference with the party leaders there and met deputations from Chateauguy.

The methods adopted by the Borden ringmasters are significant. First they sent to the scene the most notoriously unscrupulous member of the government to hold secret meetings with the local party workers. The train was secretly laid. Deputations from Chateauguy met the Minister of Public Works with their demands, and it is a carefully published secret throughout the riding that their demands were extensive and that all of them were eagerly granted. Then when everything appeared in good shape, with the certainty that every possible party advantage had been clinched by the government forces, by every device at the command of the government workers and lawyers. RICHELIEU BRIBERY.

Richelieu, Oct. 24th, 1912.—While violence was not resorted to in this by-election as in Macdonald, the most open bribery was practiced, both individually and generally. Sir Rodolphe Forget, the famous Tory-Nationalist financier was sent to the Riding as the personal emissary of Hon. Mr. Rogers. The people of Richelieu had long needed a railway, and this is what Sir Rodolphe Forget said as emissary of the Tory government and party—"I pledge you my word of honour that if you elect Mr. Morgan, (the Conservative candidate) on Thursday the Marine Railway will be voted during the parliamentary session which will be opened next month." Sir Rodolphe proceeded to declare that he was speaking as the representative of Hon. Mr. Rogers and that he had the Minister of Public Works' written pledge to this effect. The Richelieu electors refused the bribe and elected Mr. Cardin, the Liberal. Naturally they did not get the Marine Railway and Sir Rodolphe Forget tried to sneak out of his predicament with the contemptible fiction that he had been mis-reported.

HOCHELAGA PERSONATION.

Hochelaga, Que., Nov. 19, 1912.—This was a by-election for the return of Hon. Louis Coderre as Secretary of State. The Liberal party had refused to oppose him in the circumstance. But the Nationalist and Labour party, who had been so egregiously duped by the Tory government, put up a candidate, more as a protest than with any idea of defeating Hon. Mr. Coderre. Yet after the election it was charged by party heelers that Hon. Mr. Coderre had organized a system of impersonation to insure his election, and that they had "squealed" because he would not "come across" with the money they demanded. Hon. Mr. Coderre merely denied the charges and declared that his accusers were trying to blackmail him. It was proven, however, that he had paid large sums to these men, secured one a government job and promised positions to the others. The latter challenged Mr. Coderre to proceed against them on the criminal charge of blackmailing. Nearly a year has elapsed but Hon. Mr. Coderre has been glad to hold his job at the expense of tarnished honour.

The Liberal record is economy which kept expenditures so well within revenue that the National debt was substantially reduced.

The Tory record is extravagance which keeps expenditures so far ahead of even the present bounding revenues that, with Canada taking more money out of her tax payer than ever before the National debt is growing by millions each month.

DENTISTS IN ECUADOR.

Prehistoric People Had Developed Wonderful Skill.

Professor Marshall Howard Saville, who has been making extensive excavations in the State of Esmeralda, Ecuador, tells of discoveries that, among other things, seem to prove that dentistry of a high order was practiced in the Inca country more than 1,000 years ago.

"This is the end of my twenty-second trip of exploration in the tropics," said Professor Saville, "and this time I did all of the work. I am glad to say the trip has been a most successful one in every respect. I managed to get along very well in places that are seldom visited by man. I found a number of human skulls in a splendid state of preservation. The teeth were in perfectly even rows.

"The scene of my work this time was the State of Esmeralda, in Ecuador, and I was able to gather much new data bearing on the ancient civilizations of this hemisphere. The skulls I have referred to had their teeth decorated with gold, being filled with gold on the inside, but showing only slightly without. The teeth seemed to have a gold band stretched across their edges either for decoration of the mouth or to strengthen the incisors. Some of the skulls had the incisors neatly chiseled and in others with a material that seemed to be a kind of dental cement.

"In another type the gold band was cemented to the teeth, but most remarkable were the chiseled holes, most of them little ones, all filled with gold. The effect is striking and the work may be 1,000 years old—as a matter of fact it may have been done before the Incas.

"The skill with which these people worked speaks volumes for the civilization that centuries ago preceded us. I myself expect to get one full volume out of it.

"I have brought back with me articles which show how wonderfully skillful those people were in pottery work. I have examples of the most distinctive kind of pottery making."

Among other things the professor brought back with him were a miniature face and bust and a perfectly formed clay head about the size of an apple.

One of the heads was so finely finished that it seemed to be of marble instead of clay. The nose was delicately chiseled and the lips were gracefully arched.

"These are among the most perfect specimens of pottery figures I have ever seen," Professor Saville said,

A CRESTED DINOSAUR.

Alberta's Antediluvian Monste Been Carefully Mounted.

A new dinosaur hitherto unknown science, was found last summer by an expedition from the eum of Natural History. The and most realistically displayed new method—that of a long mount. In this the actual bon shown, still partly buried in the o rock from which they have chiselled in relief, and for the part in the position as found, exc that the skeleton was lying horizo on its right side.

When the dinosaur was found ply-marked sandstone surrounde skull and a part of the skeleton. ripples, in which are seen worn and impressions of horseshells, or ing rushes, have been continued the skeleton, as though the bod been washed in near shore, mal dam in the shallow water, at shoreward side of the beach had up, forming mud cracks.

The skeleton, with pieces of clinging to it here and there evidently buried on a sandy with comparatively little distu of the bones. Millions of years the bones turned to stone and dreds of feet of earth accum above them as the low-lying m was filled in, while the climate train was secretly laid. Deputations from Chateauguay met the Minister of Public Works with their demands, and it is a carefully published secret throughout the riding that their demands were extensive and that all of them were eagerly granted. Then when everything appeared in good shape, with the certainty that every possible party advantage had been clinched by the government forces, the election was announced for October 11th, leaving much less than a month for the campaign. Not a single detail was missed to assure the people that the government was determined to win this bye-election at any cost of unfairness or worse. It would be interesting to see how Chateauguay and East Middlesex fare in the Public Works estimates of next year.

CROOKED BY-ELECTIONS.

NOT ONE SINCE 1911 UNTAINTED BY "MANITOBA METHODS."

It will be well for the people of Canada to keep their eyes on Chateauguay and East Middlesex for the next few weeks. There has not been a single bye-election since Sept 21st, 1911 that has not been marked by insolent disregard for all laws of decency and public opinion on the part of the Tory workers. Not even provincial bye-elections have been allowed to escape the corrupted stream of Tory crookedness. It is not likely the coming bye-elections will be more pure, save in so far as Liberal activity compels Hon. Mr. Rogers and his hirelings to stop their bribery and corruption.

This is a record of the Conservative government in bye-elections since Hon. Mr. Rogers introduced "Manitoba Methods," devised by himself and Sir Rodmond Roblin for winning elections:—

SOUTH RENFREW.

Renfrew South—A "gentlemen's agreement" by which Hon. G. P. Graham was to be allowed election without opposition was taken by the Tories and Mr. Borden's ministers made strenuous efforts to defeat Mr. G. P. Graham, with lavish promises of Public Works and promises of large expenditures under the proposed Highways Aid Bill for good roads throughout the county. Farmers of various districts were told to elect the Conservative candidate and they would have $500 spent in that particular district. Hon. Mr. Graham was elected, and South Renfrew got neither public works nor money.

THE MACDONALD INIQUITY.

Macdonald, Man., October 12th, 1912, generally regarded as the most openly and violently corrupt election that has occurred in Canada since Confederation. Not only was money spent by the Tories with reckless openness, but Liberal workers were dogged by detectives and bogus policemen, their baggage searched by gun-shoe workers and themselves intimidated. When these high handed methods failed, Liberal workers were actually arrested on trumped up charges, with blank warrants issued by partisan magistrates, and kept in jail, with all sorts of ill treatment, until the election was virtually over. The election has naturally been protested, and the hearing of this protest is being staved off meaning. Nearly a year has elapsed since Hon. Mr. Coderre has been glad to hold his job at the expense of tarnished honour.

ANTIGONISH "MISTAKE."

Antigonish, N. S.—Although this was a mere provincial by-election in Nova Scotia, Hon. Mr. Rogers could not keep his hands off. In absolute breach of all the rules of decency and official secrecy, a short time before the election the local Tory paper came out with a full list of generous appropriations made by the Dominion government for Public Works in Antigonish—to the tune of $212,000 with promises of more—long before they were presented to parliament, as demanded by the constitution. Naturally the promises of these generous Tory grants aided the election of the Conservative candidate to the Provincial Legislature. When taxed in parliament with this gross breach of his oath of office, Hon. Mr. Rogers brazened it out by intimating that the list had been sent to Senator Girroir by an oversight, and that it was only a trifling matter anyway.

GIMLI BRIBERY TOO.

Gimli, Man.—Although this was a purely provincial by-election last May, it was marked by the usual methods which Mr. Rogers had taught Premier Roblin of Manitoba. All kinds of public bribery were used, including a definite promise from the Tory government that for every dollar spent by the farmers in building roads the government would spend another dollar—provided they elected a Tory candidate.

Not a single bye-election has occurred since the Tory government came to power in which that government was at all interested without the cloven hoof of Hon. Mr. Rogers and his Manitoba methods leaving its trail of corruption and crookedness. Electors of Chateauguay and East Middlesex must be on the alert to prevent their ridings being disgraced as were Macdonald and the others.

INORDINATE EXTRAVAGANCE. WITH INCREASED TAXATION NATIONAL DEBT GROWS FAST.

A comparison between the revenue and expenditures of the Dominion for the past month, August 1913, and September 1911, the last month of the Liberal administration and the last recorded month of the Borden government shows that while the revenue has increased by about 20 per cent for the month, the total expenditures have increased by approximately 100 per cent. While the revenue for August just past was $14,547,853, that for September, 1911, was $12,032,908. The total expenditure for September, 1911, the last month of the Laurier government, was only $9,741,603. The expenditure for August, 1913, under Borden and Rogers was $18,229,000, almost exactly twice as much. It is small wonder that while in September 1911 the Liberal administration made a net decrease in the National debt of $2,377,529, in August 1913 the Borden government admitted a net increase in the National debt of $3,681,217. That means that between the last month of Liberal government and the last recorded month of Tory government there is a difference of just $6,068,741 to the bad. The Liberals were keeping down expenditures and reducing Canadian debt. The Tories are spending recklessly and, despite increasing revenue, are increasing the debt at the rate of almost a million dollars a week according to the last statement.

This is the record of Mr. B. L. Borden, who in 1911 solemnly declared that the spendings of the Liberal government were so great as in themselves to constitute prima facie evidence of extravagant and corrupt administration:—

ture face and bust and a perfectly formed clay head about the size of an apple.

One of the heads was so finely finished that it seemed to be of marble instead of clay. The nose was delicately chiseled and the lips were gracefully arched.

"These are among the most perfect specimens of pottery figures I have ever seen." Professor Saville said, "and show that these early inhabitants of South America were the only people on that continent to bring pottery making to such a high state of perfection. They are, so far as I know, the only people of that time and region who worked with jewels and platinum. It proves that these people were highly cultured. They were purely South American, and must have had highly skilled dentists among them."

Professor Saville said he was confident that many more wonderful discoveries awaited the archaeologist in Ecuador and the adjoining countries.

Balzac a Hypnotist.

That the great French novelist Balzac was not only a believer in personal "magnetism," but himself an expert hypnotist, is affirmed by Count Apponyi in his "Journal."

Count Apponyi says that Balzac once related an instance of event reading at a distance which came under his notice. "I have believed in magnetism from that day," Balzac continued, "and have myself become a powerful magnetizer. Such is my force that few people can resist me. Almost every one who enters my house becomes hypnotized, and I can make them reveal their most secret thoughts." Balzac boasted that he could even hypnotize at a distance.

Tattooing as a Trade-Mark.

Seafaring is perhaps the only profession in which tattooing still is a "trade-mark;" the present sailor British prince has been tattooed as was his father before him, now George V. Another sign of "profession" was recently placed on her cheek by a famous English beauty who now is tattooed "Votes for Women;" fortunately methods have lately been discovered which remove such marks without scar. Tattooing has been divided by one observer into meretric or religious; totemistic; family; caste; profession; embellishment of charms; to avert the evil eye; to hide a blemish; to cure a malady.

Pigeon Post In Antipodes.

Pigeon flying is cultivated as something more than a mere sport at the Antipodes. A pigeon post is almost the only regular means of communication between Hobart, Tasmania, and the Maatsuyker island lighthouse, 75 miles out at sea, and it has seldom been known to fail. Twelve birds are used for the service, and are despatched in trios at stated intervals, with messages written on paper and secured in celluloid cases. In November, 1908, when one of the lighthouse keepers was taken seriously ill, a pigeon messenger brought a doctor from Hobart within 16 hours of its dispatch.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY

A CRESTED DINOSAUR.

ta's Antediluvian Monster Has Been Carefully Mounted.

A new dinosaur hitherto unknown to science, was found last summer in Alaska by an expedition from the Museum of Natural History. The fossil most realistically displayed by a method—that of a long panel. In this the actual bones are still partly buried in the original from which they have been led in relief, and for the most in the position as found, excepting the skeleton was lying horizontally on the right side. When the dinosaur was found, rippled sandstone surrounded the and a part of the skeleton. These impressions, in which are seen worn tracks of horsehoofs, or scours, have been continued above the skeleton, as though the body had washed in near shore, making a in the shallow water, and the ward side of the beach had dried forming mud cracks. The skeleton, with pieces of skin on it here and there, was not buried on a sandy beach comparatively little disturbance of bones. Millions of years passed, bones turned to stone and hundreds of feet of earth accumulated on them as the low-lying marshes filled in, while the climate, then

The "Dunces" of Old.

The word dunce now means exactly the reverse of what it meant originally.

Dunce was originally a term applied to a very wise man.

Some 600 years ago there lived a philosopher whose name was Duns. He was the leader of a certain number of thinkers and scholars who were known as schoolmen, and those who followed him were known as Dunsmen, or Dunses. People in those days were not so careful of their spelling as we of a later date, and so they fell into the way of spelling the word with a "c" instead of an "s," so that Dunses soon was spelled Dunces. A dunce, therefore, signified a learned man and was a title much prized. After a certain time these dunces became very unpopular because of their scoffing at the teachings of others, especially those who were progressive in their doctrines. They had a most conceited idea that they were the only really wise men, and it was not very long before the word dunce became a term of reproach and signified a lack of good sense in the person to whom it was applied, and thus the word became reversed in meaning.

MAJOR GROFOOT had 11 cents in his right hand trousers pocket.

He had 9 cents in his left hand trousers pocket.

Eleven and nine are twenty even in Africa.

The major had counted and counted, but could make the sum total neither more nor less. It represented his total cash fortune. It stood between him and the condition of being busted. Just an ordinary lunch and there wouldn't be a cent left to juggle.

"If a sucker doesn't come in today!"

He had got that far when a man walked through the open door and stood before him. It was a man whom he hoped was dead. It took the major fully thirty seconds to remember he had borrowed the money for only a couple of days and had pledged his honor to return it and to realize that it was about to be "called in" with or without a row.

"By George, Stevens, but this is singular—mighty singular!" exclaimed the major as he got his feet down and extended his hand. "Not two minutes ago I was wondering why on earth I never met you or why you didn't call. I've had a check for you for months. Been out of the country, eh?"

"Been looking for you!" solemnly replied the caller as he took a seat and mopped his brow.

"For me! Why, I've been right here for a year, except at brief intervals, and I should have been rejoiced to see you. I'm not a man to forget old friends. Stevens. In the days of my adversity, when I hadn't even money enough to get my laundry, you stood by me like a brick. You were one of the few who believed in me."

A Hot Rejoinder.

"Never!" replied Stevens. "No, I never believed in you! I knew you were a deadbeat the first time I saw you! I want that $3!"

"And when a man believes in my integrity," continued the major, "when a

Mrs. Hamilton Tells How She Finally Found Health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Warren, Ind.—"I was bothered terribly with female weakness. I had pains and was not regular, my head ached all the time, I had bearing down pains and my back hurt me the biggest part of the time, I was dizzy and had weak feelings when I would stoop over, it hurt me to walk any distance and I felt blue and discouraged."

"I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am now in good health. If it had not been for that medicine I would have been in my grave a long time ago."—Mrs. ARTIE E. HAMILTON, R. F. D. No. 6, Warren, Ind.

Another Case.

Esmond, R. I.—"I write to tell you how much good your medicine has done me and to let other women know that there is help for them. I suffered with bearing down pains, headache, was irregular and felt blue and depressed all the time. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and commenced to gain in a short time and I am a well woman today. I am on my feet from early morning until late at night running a boarding house and do all my own work. "I have called for my $3," was the quiet reply as the creditor arose and removed his coat.

"And what is the Great American Old Fashioned Pumpkin Pie company?" queried the major as he walked to and fro with a tender smile on his face. "As its name indicates, it is a corporation for the manufacture and sale of the pumpkin pies of our grandmothers' days, the pie which encouraged the minute men at Lexington and stood behind the patriots at Bunker Hill. It was the old fashioned pumpkin pie which cemented and built up this Union and brought about the prosperity of a nation. Had we stuck by the pie which stuck by us our influence and prosperity would have been twice what they are now; but, alas, we put it behind us for floating island, Charlotte russe and strawberry shortcake!"

"My $3!" said the creditor as he rose and loosened his vest.

Helping the Chancellor.

The difficulty Mr. Lloyd George had in deciding what to tax and what to leave untaxed in this year's budget recalls the stor, of an earlier Chan- cellor of the Exchequer who was re- duced to despair in similar circum- stances.

Finally he decided to consult a friend who had on several occasions helped him to find fresh sources of revenue, and having written to this friend he waited hopefully for his reply.

The friend's suggestion came by re- turn of post.

"Put a tax on umbrellas," he wrote, "and make the bishops order the prayer for rain to be read in all the churches."

Came To See Her.

Sir Herbert Tree tells a number of good stories. One of his favorites is about an old lady who had invited some friends down to pass the week- end at her little country cottage.

Her guests arrived in a tremen- dous downpour of rain.

"Dear, dear!" exclaimed the nos- tess as she welcomed them in; "what a day! I'm glad you've come, but do hope the weather will clear up, or you won't enjoy yourselves much."

"Oh, but, my dear Mrs. Jones," re- plied one of her guests politely, "we didn't come to enjoy ourselves; we came to see you!"

Scotch Whales Dying Out.

The ancient and famous whaling industry of Scotland is rapidly dying out; such is the unmistakable mean- ing of the returns just published in the annual report of the Fishery Board of Scotland. It appeared that the total catch of whales in Scottish waters during 1912 was only 440, as compared with 503 in 1911. This represents a decline of 13 per cent. in a year. If less than 40 per cent. Curiously, however, an altogether excep- tional number of sperm whales were captured—18, as compared with nine of the previous year.

Yes, you believed in me when others refused to, and it warms the cockles of my heart as I recall your conduct. One day you forced $3 into my hand and would not let me even thank you."

"You are a liar, and I want my money!"

"I was in the depths of despair for a few weeks, but then the jade called Fortune began to smile on me. When she turned in my favor she couldn't do enough. I promoted and floated company after company and trust after trust and raked in fortune after fortune, and today, Stevens—today I can draw my check for millions. If it had not been for you and your $3 I might not be able to buy a sardine. Yes, sir, it was your push upward that enabled me to reach the pinnacle on which I stand at present, and I am not the man to forget it."

"Come down with my three!" whis- pered the creditor as he looked over the major's head.

"Months and months ago I made out a check for you. In return for your $3 I made out a check for $3,000. But, alas, I could not find your address; Providence seems to have guided your footsteps today. Some men might stop at returning $3,000 for $3 and think they had done a good thing, but I can't do it, Stevens—can't possibly do it. When I think of your sublime confi- dence in me!"

"I never had any!"

The Encomiums Heap Up.

To Nationalize the Pie.

"But we are about to return to the halcyon pie—to nationalize it once more and make it a bulwark of liberty. I have organized a company, with $2,000,000 paid up capital. The shares are selling at par value today, but the first whiff of the first pumpkin pie which reaches the nostrils of the patri- ots of America will bounce those shares to $120. We shall have the old fashioned pumpkins, the old fashioned molasses, the old fashioned ginger cake. We shall turn out pies which will melt in the mouths of the gods and lift the sons of liberty off their heels. On the face of each pie will be stamped the Goddess of Liberty, and on the back will be the American eagle holding the stars and stripes in his claws. While the enter devours pump- kin pie he is at the same time filling up on freedom."

"My $3!" said Stevens as he removed his cuffs and pushed up his sleeves.

"And you are to be vice president at a salary of $20,000 a year!" smiled the major. "In the days when the world was against me you forced $3 into my hand and showed your confidence and trust. Do you think I can rest con- tent by simply repaying the loan or even by making it $3,000? No, never! Monday morning you shall enter upon your duties, and if you want your salary for a year in advance you shall have it. In time that $3 may grow to $3,000,000, and no one will be more gratified than yours truly. Once the pumpkin pie is replaced on its pedes- tal of greatness, once the"—

The Major in Difficulties.

Mr. Stevens grabbed the major and shoved him against the wall, but did not disconcert him. It was only ten seconds before he went on:

"I was making out the papers before you came in, but found that I lacked the sum necessary to file them with the secretary of state. If you happen to have a five dollar bill about you"—

Mr. Stevens banged the major's head against the wall and growled at his cheek, but it was no go.

"As you go out you may look for of- fices, a suit in some first class loca- tion, and it would be well if you stepped into some bank and introduced yourself. There will be nothing cheap about this affair. Even the ovens in which we bake the pies will be nickel plated."

Mr. Stevens threw the major down and banged his head on the floor and choked him and called him names, but when he had finished the grand pro- moter rose up and continued:

"I have figured it down close, and we shall sell 3,000,000 pies per day the year round. The profit on each pie will be 4 cents, and the sum total—what! Going? Well, it is a busy day for both of us, but don't forget to call on Monday. I shall want you to start out the first thing and con- tract for 800,000 pumpkins and"—

But the creditor gave him one long, lingering look of chagrin and contempt and stalked out, and the major sat down in his old position and winked at the calendar on the wall and began dreaming other dreams of wealth and power.

Each farmer who applies will receive as many selected cockerels as he desires at the nominal price of $1.00 each. These birds are to be used for breeding purposes. On June 30th, 1914, these cockerels may be returned to the Department of Agriculture, and the $1.00 will be returned to the farmer. Farmers desiring birds under the above conditions are invited to apply to the Agriculture Office, Napanee.

It Does Make a Difference.

Not so very long ago it didn't much matter according to the scheme of things, what kind of an article we bought. A hat was a hat, a suit of clothes was a suit of clothes, one kind of food was apparently as good as another. That is all changed now. We somehow feel as if we aren't getting our money's worth unless our purchases are backed up with a reputation. We feel we have a right, that it is profitable for us to know with whom we deal and what the reasons are for doing business here, or there or anywhere. Speaking colloquially, "we're from Missouri." Nowadays we read our newspapers with care and we know a thing or two about quality service, reliability, reputation, etc. Let the careless buy where they will, but we prefer to take no chances so long as we may be informed by the advertising columns of reliable papers like The Express.

A New Suffragette.

Militant suffragists were sadly in need of an active worker and fighter when Lady Sybil Smith offered herself for the post. She is a daughter of Lord and Lady Antrim, and the wife of Mr. V. H. Smith, a partner of the big banking firm of Morgan, Grenfell & Co. Since fighting for "the vote" made a wreck of Lady Constance Lytton, sister of Lord Lytton, there was no titled woman to fight the police. It would be hard to find a greater enthusiast than Lady Constance's successor, who is very Irish, and daring enough for anything. It now transpires that she has hatched half the cleverest of the militant suffragists' plots and that she is always ready to do that which she devises.

But the poor old Earl of Antrim, one of the old school, with the Irishman's horror of seeing any of his womenfolk in the public eye, has been frantic and declares that there ought to be a law by which a man can divorce a wife who is a suffragist. When Lady Sybil was recently arrested in the House of Commons with Mrs. Petibick Lawrence, she was more active in her resistance than any other prisoner and with her jewelled rings gave the policeman a mark that will be there for some time. She says that she is prepared to die for "the cause," and would rather give up her family than it.

Criticizing Queen Alexandra.

The fact that Queen Alexandra has sent a wedding present to Manuel of Portugal, inscribed, "To my dear Manuel, King of Portugal, from his affectionate aunt, Alexandra," and that the King and Queen sent a present very similarly inscribed, caused much comment, and a good many people are still contending that Manuel should not be openly styled King in a country that recognizes the Portuguese Republic, and precedents are cited.

When Louis Philippe became an exile in England after the revolution of 1848, he and his wife lived quietly at Claremont as the Count and Countess De Neuilly. One of the newspapers goes so far as to say: "Perhaps Sir Edward Grey will oblige with a hint."

Field Day in Nanabee. The Dominion Alliance are sending two representatives to address the citizens here, Rev. B. H. Spence, Secretary of the Alliance, and Rev. F. W. Duggan, Field Secretary for this district, will be here and address the congregations of Presbyterian and the two Methodist churches. Mr. Spence will speak in Trinity church in the morning and Mr. Duggan in Grace church. Each will remain for the Sunday School session and address the Sunday Schools. In the evening Mr. Duggan will speak in Trinity church and Mr. Spence in Grace church. The Presbyterians have arranged for an extra service next Sunday evening to be held in the Town Hall at 8.15 at which meeting both of these speakers will be present and address those present. They have also arranged to bring with them a soprano soloist who will render choice music. He will sing in Trinity church in the morning before the address and then go to Grace church and sing after the address is given. And also in the evening he will sing in Grace church before the address and then go to Trinity church and sing after the address is given. He will also be present at the meeting in the Town Hall and favor the audience with selections. On Monday evening in the Town Hall a public meeting of the citizens will be held at 8 o'clock at which these representatives of the Alliance will speak. A discussion will follow, after which it will be definitely settled whether a Local Option Contest will be brought and an election held in January next. An urgent invitation is extended to every citizen to be present at all these meetings and it is hoped that the Monday evening meeting especially may be strongly representative of the electors of Napanee. A collection will be taken at the door on Monday evening to assist in defraying expenses of the representatives.

Fermentation of Sawdust.

A large English company has recently commenced the commercially successful production of acetone and fusel oil from sawdust by a simple process of fermentation. From these two products isoprene can be derived, which latter can be changed into rubber, merely by allowing it to lie in contact with a small quantity of the metal sodium. This synthetical rubber vulcanizes readily and compares favorably with the natural product in resilience, durability and price. Acetone is used in the manufacture of cordite, and fusel oil is used in the manufacture of artificial cloth. Previously it was chiefly obtained as a bye-product in the manufacture of whisky, brandy and vodka, but by these new processes it can now be extracted much more cheaply, making possible a large profit. It is calculated that these bye-products of sawdust are worth almost $400 a ton. As it only takes ten tons of sawdust to yield a ton of these valuable constituents, the resulted profit is obvious. In Europe, with its densely populated regions contiguous to the forests, the elimination of wood-waste is an economic essentiality, and hence methods have been evolved which, in some cases, utilize even the leaves and roots of trees. While this is not essential in America at present, it is desirable to reduce the waste which takes place in the different processes of transforming the standing timber into finished product, which amounts to something like fifty per cent of the total volume of the tree. To this end, the Canadian Government is establishing a fully equipped Wood Products Laboratory at McGill University in charge of Mr. A. G. McIntyre, B. A., B. Sc., under whose direction experiments will be conducted to discover new uses for common Canadian trees and for the enormous quantities of sawdust and other forms of waste wood which now represent a money loss to the country of millions of dollars annually.

I. O. D. E.

The members of the U. E. Lo Chapter spent a very pleasant afternoon last Friday, when, at the invitation of the teacher, Miss McGu they visited the Pleasant View School on the Belleville Road. Union Jack was flying above the school and the interior was most attractive, having been decorated the occasion by the children's flags, maple leaves and flowers; Wilfred Cline, Robert Milling, Sexsmith and Frank Herrington made even the dreaded blackboard look quite festive with Union very well drawn in colored chalk. There was also a number of very specimens of the children's artwork—both drawings and paintings ornamenting the walls.

After a few words of welcome, Miss McGuinness, Mrs. M. C. B. who made a most efficient pleasing chairman, opened the proceedings with a few preliminary remarks, after which the Regent, Harshaw, made a short address. Gibson read "The Raising of Flag," during which Miss McGu pointed out on a map the different places named at which the flag run up. Ward Sexsmith read nicely an interesting selection, Maple Tree's Story. "The Mer of Empire" which included an interesting account of a celebration Empire Day held by the chief loyal native tribes, in Nigeria, on the west coast of Africa, was read by Finkle.

"Canada" a patriotic song to childish voices, was sung prettily by a chorus of five boys three little girls. Mrs. Simpson read a poem entitled "Canadian all," followed by Mr. Reid, trustee, who made a few remarks winding up with a good story inimitable style. The Regent reappeal written by Lord Roberts. British boys and girls to be loyal to the Empire; and presented to school, on behalf of the U. E. Lo Chapter, a framed picture of Edward Prince of Wales, in his robes of Order of the Garter.

Mr. Nesbitt was then called and said some very kind and encouraging words regarding the educational work which the I. O. D. E. is to do, and gave the U. E. Lo Chapter a cordial invitation to other schools in Lennox Co. After a few words from Miss McGuinness the proceedings closed with national anthem.

Notable Timber Growths.

Exhibits of grain, potatoes, and corn are grown from seed to the children by the Department of Agriculture. In the heart of the Red Deer District, the best mixed farming district in Western Canada, we own a large tract of choice land. All the land is close to railway and the district is well settled with good farmers. For dairying, this country cannot be excelled; pastures plentiful and prices good. Our terms are good and the payments extend over a period of ten years. Anyone considering moving to Western Canada would do well to get information from us. We are open to consider a trade of some of these lands for Ontario lands. Write us and our representative will answer all inquiries.

OBITUARY.

Mr. Henry Milling.

The subject of this sketch lived since boyhood on the old homestead on the Belleville Road. He will be missed by a host of friends both in town and country. He was a man of sterling integrity, or, as a neighbor remarked, he was so dependable his word was as good as a bond. He was of a very quiet and retiring disposition. He was always connected with Trinity Church taking the family pew in the old church at his father's death and expressing in his illness the utmost trust in the Lord. He was married in 1884 to Miss J. A. Armitage, of Marysville, to whom six children were born, all of whom survive, except little George, who was drowned at the age of 3 years, 21 years ago. Frank, of Newburgh road, and Wm., Ruth, Mabel and Robert at home. The bereaved widow and family have the sympathy of the community in their sorrow.

GRACE CHURCH RALLY DAY.

The Sunday School Rally in Grace Church on Sunday last was worthy of mention. It was undoubtedly one of the most successful in the long Sunday School history of that church.

Grace Church has for many years made the service to young people a special feature, and the great Rally of Sunday was simply the result of long and faithful work.

The audience room of the church was filled with Sunday School people and their friends.

Every officer of the 13 was present. Every teacher of the 20 was present, with only one exception.

Out of 110 in the Primary Class 90 were present and preserved such perfect order that Mrs. Smith, their Superintendent, was publicly congratulated on their behaviour.

Out of a total scholarship of 402, 363 answered the roll call on Rally morning.

The collection for the Sunday School Aid Fund was $31.00.

The programme, arranged by the General Secretary, was carried out to the satisfaction of all present.

The total Sunday School force of the Methodist church in Canada is 427,388, and the number of schools is 3,690.

Bay of Quinte Conference has 429 Sunday Schools and 54,071 members.

DO FALSE CREEDS MAKE CRIMINALS?

Prison Statistics Support the Inference, Says Pastor Russell.

Reverence for God Constitutional With All—With Proper Conceptions of God All Would Delight to Worship Him—How Satan Has Fostered the Misconceptions—How These in Turn Have Driven Men From the Almighty in Fear—God Has Been Pictured as Beelzebub—The Bible, Considered the Revelation of Satanic Purposes, is Shunned—The People Perish for Lack of Knowledge—Christians Should Awake—The True God Should Be Preached—True Knowledge Will Draw All Men Toward Him.

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 28.—Pastor Russell preached twice here to-day. We report one of his discourses, from the text, "If our Gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost, in whom the god of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not, lest the light of the glorious Gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them."—2 Corinthians 4:3, 4.

I do not charge our forefathers with evil intent in making the creeds. I cheerfully admit that every creed contains an element of Bible Truth. My contention is that Satan has substituted the creeds for the Bible; and into the creeds, through human weakness, he has injected a sufficiency of nonsense and "doctrines of demons" to render them unhealthful for saints, and absolutely poisonous to others, said the Pastor.

Taking up his text, he declared that its truthfulness is manifest on every hand. The word Gospel means "good tidings of great joy." This Gospel of Divine Love and Mercy toward our race is completely hidden from the world. Even mature Christians discern but little because the creeds of human tradition have so misrepresented God and His purposes as to make of them bad tidings.

"Hath Blinded Their Minds."

The Pastor pointed out that St. Paul, as well as the other Apostles, foretold the falling away of the Church from "the faith once delivered to the saints." St. Paul particularly declared that this would result from giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of demons—the fallen angels. (1 Timothy 4:1.) In a thousand ways, through mediums, planchettes, visions and dreams, these seducing spirits have intruded their demon doctrines upon God's Church. Their purport is to deceive mankind regarding God's real character and purposes.

The Pastor then showed how successful Satan and his fallen host have been. While persuading men that they were afar off stoking fires, they have really been assisting ecclesiastics in misinterpreting of the Bible, especially its parables and symbolical statements. As a result, the glory of God manifested in Jesus for human salvation is unintelligible to the world.

The statement of our text, "Hid to Organized Adult Bible Class.

Nearly all the classes are organized. The absence of one, the late Mrs. Thomas Symington, who was long identified with this school, a teacher for 37 years of the adult Bible Class, brought a shadow on the assembly, for "she being dead yet speaketh," and many say of her, "I thank my God on every remembrance of you." Her class still maintains its enthusiasm and membership.

Mr. Eyvel and his staff are to be congratulated on the splendid work, not only of Rally Day, but during the past years. The average attendance last year was something over 300.

We hope the special Sunday of Sept. 28th will greatly augment the numbers of scholars on the roll and add increased enthusiasm to the school.

MORVEN.

The Rally Day service at the Brick Church last Sunday was a real success. The young people acquitted themselves remarkably well. The floral decorations were beautiful. The offering for the General Sunday School Fund was in excess of that of last year, being over ten dollars. The attendance was large and the interest displayed betokens greater success in the work of the Sunday School in the future, which means much, as this Sunday School has maintained a good record in the past.

The Lutheran Rally also comes in for its meed of praise. For so small a school there is a liberal measure of talent and it was put to good use on this occasion. The offering in proportion to the number present was really creditable, being about three dollars. Something good is in store for this school and those who patronize it.

CHAMBERS.

The Lutheran Church Sunday School here is introducing a new and interesting feature in its work. Look out for good things. As our pastor will be on Odessa Circuit next Sunday Mr. J. F. Lake will take the Bible Class. Let all the classes be full next Sunday at 2 p.m., sharp. The Rev. W. Down, of Selby, will preach here next Sunday at our anniversary service of the Temperance and Moral Reform Work of the Methodist denomination. The choir is preparing special music for the occasion. No person should miss this anniversary service.

NOTICE.

Special attention is called to the important and interesting services to be held next Sunday at White Church at 10.30 a.m., at Lutheran at 3 p.m., and at Brick Church at 7.30 p.m., the occasion being the anniversary services of the Temperance and Moral Reform department of the work of the Methodist denomination. The Rev. Wesley Down, of Selby, is to be the preacher and special contributions by the choirs may be expected in all the churches. There should be a very large attendance at all these services. Come early. Welcome to everybody.

real stock yards, west end market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Sept. 27 were 4250 cattle, 6350 sheep and lambs, 3100 hogs, and 2100 calves. The supply on the market this morning for sale amounted to 3100 cattle, 3900 sheep and lambs, 1800 hogs and 1600 calves.

Supplies of all kinds of live stock continue to come forward very freely, the receipts for last week being the largest on record for any one week for many months past, while the offerings on the market this morning were in excess of anything for one day for a considerable time past, which is attributed to the continued good demand for common bulls, stockers and grass fed calves for shipment to the United States, there being over 50 carloads forwarded for the above market alone last week. From present indications the shipments will probably be even larger this week, as the demand from American buyers was brisk today, which resulted in a very active trade. There is no actual change in the condition of the market, prices being firmly held with sales of common bulls at $3.75 to $4; stockers at $3.75 to $4.75 per 100 pounds, and grass-fed calves at $3.40 to $4 per pound. In addition to the above demand local packing concerns were also operating freely in common stock for earning purposes at $3.75 to $4 for bulls, and at $2.25 to $2.75 for cows per 100 pounds.

The supply of butchers' cattle was not large, but on account of the increased offerings of common grades there was no important change in prices to note. The market being firm for useful stock. The catherine of buyers was large, and owing to the continued cool weather and increased consumption of beef of late the demand was good, but on account of the scarcity of really choice steers buyers as a rule had to satisfy their wants with the next best grade of cattle, and sales of full carloads of good steers were made at $6.50, and a few small lots of picked choice steers as high as $7 to $7.25 per 100 pounds.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $7.60 to $7.25; do, medium, $6.50 to $6.50; do, common, $4.50 to $5.00; canners, $3.50 to $4.00; butchers' cattle, choice, $5.50 to $5.75; do, medium, $4.50 to $5.00; do, bulls, $4.50 to $5.50; milkers, choice, each, $7.50 to $8; milkers, com. and medium, each, $6.50 to $7; springers, $5.50 to $6.00. YARMOUTH, Eng., Sept. 30.—Militant suffragette "arson squads" were again busy Sunday night, when they destroyed the greens of the municipal golf links with acid.

The women left a confession of their crime on the ground and a note saying: "The timber yard was set fire to by us." This had reference to a fire which on Saturday had destroyed $175,000 worth of timber at a lumber yard in this city.

The confession added: "We poured oil on the planks and left a candle burning."

Other cars were found on the links bearing the message: "No vote, no sport, no peace, no property safe."

been. While persuading men that they were afar off stoking fires, they have really been assisting ecclesiastics in misinterpreting of the Bible, especially its parables and symbolical statements. As a result, the glory of God manifested in Jesus for human salvation is unintelligible to the world.

The statement of our text, "Hid to them that are lost," said the Pastor, does not mean that they are lost because they cannot see it. The Bible distinctly tells us that all are lost through Adam's disobedience. The Apostle means that the masses of the lost world cannot see the Gospel light. Soon Christ will take His great power and reign. His first work will be to bind Satan, that he may no longer deceive mankind.

What Prison Statistics Mean.

In all modern prisons, statistics are kept showing what religious training was received by the prisoners in early life. In almost every case the prisoners guilty of the most serious crimes were from infancy trained to believe in eternal torment. In such homes, fear prevailed instead of love. The natural effect upon the children would be a terror of God, a torturing fear respecting the future.

Even in Christian homes, the parents feared to tell the children their advanced views. They said, if children are scarcely restrained from evil-doing with the thought of eternal torture, how terrible might be their course if they were to doubt that doctrine! Little did we realize the foolishness of such reasoning, said the Pastor. Fear cannot draw the sinner to God. "The love of Christ constraineth us."

The Pastor then showed that the influence of the creeds of the Dark Ages has been the very reverse of what has been expected. Man naturally has reverence for God. The true knowledge of God would incline men to worship Him. The highest qualities of their being would find expression in worship. With the enlightenment of the Bible men would learn that all are sinners; that death, not torment, is the penalty for sin; but that God has provided through Jesus' death a reconciliation.

Return to Divine favor and everlasting life is made possible to every member of the race. The conditions are a return to heart-harmony with God and the principles of righteousness and love. Those who will not return will eventually die the Second Death.

By hiding the Truth from men, Satan has driven them from their best Friend—Almighty God. In dread of God and in fear of the unmerciful arrangements for the future taught them from infancy, many have plunged headlong into sin, striving to forget God. But a true knowledge of God's character has revolutionized the lives of many.

NO PLACE FOR WOMEN.

British Commons Looks On Fair Sex With Suspicion.

Collectively the British House of Commons does not approve of woman, and she is only allowed within the precincts on sufferance. Even the wives and daughters of Cabinet Ministers walk along the corridors in a furtive manner, and no woman on any pretext may move from one part of the building to another unescorted by a man.

Should a woman wish to speak with a member she must present herself at the lobby entrance and humbly give his name to the policeman on duty. After scrutinizing her bag and parcels the policeman will pass her on till she finally arrives at the outer lobby, where she can inscribe her name and that of the member she wishes to see upon a card. It may be sent in at once, or the gold-chained official may decide that he will have a nap first.

The woman waits patiently, or impatiently, according to temperament, seated upon a narrow green leather bench between cold and supercilious statues of politicians of a bygone day. If the member wishes to see his visitor he may appear in half an hour or an hour, or he may merely tear up the card, when his name will presently be called as "not in the House." The unwritten law that no woman must move about the House unescorted existed long before the suffragettes spread panic among politicians.

Only the other day Mrs. Asquith and Mrs. Winston Churchill were chatting with a party of members when the division bell rang as a signal that a vote was to be taken. The ladies were hastily deposited on the nearest bench, and told not to move till they were fetched. Not long ago the daughter of a titled lady was thus left by her hosts, a father and son, both members of the House. After the vote each man thought the other had returned and escorted their guest to a place of safety. Only at dinner time, some hours later, was the absence of the girl noticed. She had remained obediently on the spot where she had been left, under the impression that dire consequences would follow any attempt on her part to find her way outside alone.

The ladies' gallery is ridiculously inadequate as regards size and the possibility of seeing and hearing. It holds only forty, and of these not more than a dozen can see and hear. Outside in the corridor there is a long uncomfortable bench on which women who have secured supplementary tickets (that is, a ticket to admit if there is an empty place) sit sometimes for hours. The Speaker's gallery is rather smaller, and is entirely at the disposal of Mr. Lowther. If a Cabinet Minister or other member is going to make a special speech, his wife will write to Mrs. Lowther begging as a favor to be permitted to occupy a seat in this gallery.

"What? You didn't let your office boy off this afternoon simply because he told you his grandmother was dead? Don't you know that the moment he left here he went straight to the ball game?"

"Yes, but what could I do? The little rascal, taking a long chance, looked me straight in the eye and asked me politely would I like to attend the funeral. You can't call a man's-size bluff like that, can you?"

NEW DIOCESE CREATED

REV. F. X. BRUNET ELEVATED TO BISHOPRIC OF MONT LAURIER.

Most Recent Addition to the French Roman Catholic Prelates of the Dominion Is a Popular Clergyman and Third Graduate of His College to Be Raised Within a Year—To Start His Duties at Once.

Considerable interest was aroused the other day when Archbishop Gauthier, of Ottawa, received word from Rome that the Vatican has formed a new diocese in Canada to be known as Mont Laurier, out of the Quebec half of the Ottawa archdiocese and that Rev. F. X. Brunet, secretary of the archbishop of Ottawa, has been appointed the new bishop.

The new diocese takes in the northern half of Wright and Labelle counties. The most southern point in the diocese on the Ottawa valley line will be Gracefield and the head of the new diocese will be situated in the town of Mont Laurier, a place of about 3,000 inhabitants, but with a very promising future. It is at the head of the Laurentian mountain branch of the Canadian Pacific Railroad. There are said to be some 30,000 Roman Catholics in the district embraced in the diocese. It is served at present by three religious orders of priests, the Oblats, the Marists and the regular canons of the Immaculate Conception, who have a college at Nominingue.

Bishop Brunet is the third graduate of Ottawa University to be raised to the episcopate within the year, the other two being Bishop Ryan and Bishop McNally. The new bishop is very well known and popular in Ottawa. He is only 45 years of age and was educated at the University of Ottawa where he obtained his B.A. degree in 1890. He was ordained in 1892 by Archbishop Duhamel and after acting for a time as curate at the Basilica in the capital and at Aylmer, became parish priest at Mayo in 1895 and the Brook in 1900. He built a chapel in Mulgrave for the colony of German Catholics there and in the Brook in particular was very popular.

He became secretary to Archbishop Duhamel in 1904 and acting chancellor of the diocese, a position which he has continued to hold up to the present under Archbishop Gauthier since the death of Monsignor Duhamel.

The new bishop was born at St. Andre D'Archeville in the diocese of

SMITHERS' TOWN.

Chairman of G. T. Board is Impeached at Last.

Right in the heart of the great orchard of British Columbia—a picturesque spot known as the Valley—surveyors and engineers all such are busy on a new town.

That town has a reason. So has its name.

The first is the fact that it is only general freight and passenger point between Prince Rupert and Fort George.

The second is—Smithers. And a very good reason the to for calling itself by the name godfather. Not only because Mr. Waldron Smithers is chairman of Board of Directors of the Grand although that alone would see it as a reason. Not only because, highest officer of the Grand Trunk Pacific, he is called the counsellor Grand Trunk official family. An estimable characteristic to be still, that is not the only reason the first general freight and passenger point east of the west minus of the new railway so called after the good counsellor official family.

He was asked to be the godfather many Western towns which were not long ago out in the heart of the Rockies—towns which looked on huge glaciers and rushing torrents on mighty cascades and forested cedars; towns which are sprung from canvas and tent pitched into the more substantial forms of stone and brick.

And now comes the reason why last town—and most decidedly least—came to be named after a great man who is quick to do good work, and just as quick to criticism in silence.

"Serve the others first" is his motto.

And that is how they have and Watrous and Biggar and Wright, not to forget Melville, after the great man, Charles L. Hays, in whose brain the whole scheme originated. It was characteristic of Alfred V. Smithers to wish to be the father on the Western line.

Perhaps that is why they made town such an important one. From being in the very centre of agricultural, Smithers, the town a perpetual belt of silver, copper and lead.

Which seems rather extravagant a newly-christened infant of three—or anywhere.

But we must speak of Smithers. His modesty has been his above. Forty years ago, when a youth of 23, he joined the Stock Exchange, and remained there until four years ago, when signed, to devote his energies to the development of railroads in Canada. Being the son of the late William Smithers, of the Bank of England, seems natural that he should be named as a financial authority to the British Empire.

In 1895 he became a director of Grand Trunk, later being elected president and chairman.

England still claims much of the attention, he being a director of the Eastern and Chatham Railway, chairman of the English Association of American Share and Bondholders.

And apart from all this, from interest in things of national importance, it is possibly the most interesting his private life. Children are his, and wherever he is, he is surrounded by laughing tots, delighted to be entertained by the man of affairs.

He became secretary to Archbishop Duhamel in 1904 and acting chancellor of the diocese, a position which he has continued to hold up to the present under Archbishop Gauthier since the death of Monsignor Duhamel.

The new bishop was born at St. Andre D'Argenteuil in the diocese of Ottawa Nov. 26, 1863. His parents were Francois Brunet and Leocadie Joly. He made his university course at Ottawa and studied theology also at the Grnad Seminary. He speaks English and French with equal fluency and is very well known throughout the whole diocese. His promotion has been well received. He will enter upon his new duties at once.

The "Maximum" Wage.

England knew the maximum wage long before the minimum was thought of. It came about after the "black plague" of 1343 had swept away half the population. Work was at a standstill for want of workers, and wages went up so enormously that the state thought it necessary to fix a limit. The state ordered that the laborer should not merely accept gratefully what was offered him, but that he must not leave his parish in search of another master on pain of having the letter "T" (for fugitive) branded on his forehead. Statutes of this kind were popular up to Queen Elizabeth's time, when the last of the series was passed, "in the hope that it should banish idleness, advance husbandry and yield unto the hired person, both in the time of scarcity and in the time of plenty, a convenient proportion of wages."

Australia's Capital.

Canberra, the site of Australia's Federal Capital, has been transferred, and the country for miles around is now a hive of industry. The building trade there is brisk, and elaborate preparations have been made in connection with the commencement of the brickmaking industry. Railway construction between Queanbeyan and Canberra is being pushed on, and even greater activity is shown with the water supply scheme for the federal city. Excellent roads are also being constructed connecting Canberra with the surrounding districts.

Climb Ben Nevis on Cycle.

Mr. J. H. Lowcock, of Beckenham, and Mr. Aubrey Selby, of Loomley, Kent, Eng., have succeeded in an attempt to ascend Ben Nevis on a motorcycle. Ben Nevis is 4,406 feet high, and has a circumference of over 24 miles at the base.

Three Kinds of Biographies.

After Woodrow Wilson had been nominated one of his friends said: "Governor, you should write an autobiography." Other purchases in the past have been as follows: January, 1909, forty-five mules at $157.50; February, 1909, fifty mules at $169.50; September, 1909, fifty

NEW BOOKS AT LIBRARY

There are hundreds of good books in the library that are rarely called for. These are all catalogued and may be found by referring to the card catalogue which is open to members but is not as generally consulted as it ought to be. With the limited funds at the disposal of the board they found it impracticable to continue the publication of the old fashioned printed catalogue which was no sooner printed than a supplement was necessary to keep it up to date. The sections devoted to Travel, General Literature and Miscellaneous will be found to contain many interesting and instructive books. The following new volumes have just been added. Cut out the list for future reference:—

Science from an easy chair. This book reaches the highwater mark of popular papers on scientific subjects. The papers are perfect models of scientific exposition, simple yet not childish informative but not tedious and bright without being flippant.

Through our unknown Southwest, by Agnes C. Laut. All of Miss Laut's works are good reading and this, her latest dealing with the attractive and interesting features of the south western part of the United States is fully up to the standard.

A book of distinctive interiors. If you are at loss how to furnish your house and make it cosy and attractive you will get many valuable hints from this book which is beautifully illustrated.

Confessions of a Tenderfoot, by Ralph Stock. A well written illustrated book dealing with the amusing and instructive experiences of a young man upon the frontier of different countries and particularly in our own Northwest.

A Montessori Mother. A comprehensive exposition of the new system of child training. Parents with young children will find this book very interesting.

European Cities at Work, Here's a chance for the town fathers to learn how to run a municipality and the ratepayer to arm himself when he wants to criticise them for not doing things as they ought to be done.

Italy's War for a desert. Owing to the strict censorship during the Italian war in Tripoli the outside world knew very little of what really took place. This work tells all about it.

The Art of Entertaining for all occasions, by Madam Merri. No need any longer to puzzle your brains about how to get up a Sunday school entertainment, a children's party, or some other amusements for your friends who do not dance or play cards. Just call at the library and pursue this book.

"Goldwin Smith's Correspondence." No man in Canada ever wielded a pen with greater ease than the late professor Goldwin Smith. In this book of letters dealing with all manner of subjects, we find him at his best.

Because of Jane, by J. E. Buckrose. One of the freshest and most delightful novels that have appeared for some time.

Martha by the day, by Julie M. Simpson. "Martha is a marvel of physical strength, sound sense, humor and general capacity."

The Happy Warrior, by A. S. M. Hutchinson, has been pronounced "The outstanding novel of the season."

Widecombe Fair, by Eden Phillpotts. There is in this new book-magic word, painting and racy humor.

The Inside of the Cup, by Winston Churchill. A powerful novel dealing with one of the most vital questions of life in the present day.

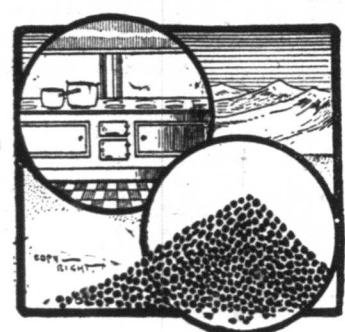

Phoebe Ernest and Cupid, by Inez Hayns Gillmore. Phoebe and Ernest

"Well, what do you propose to do?" he asked of Brand, putting it up to the other man to lead the conversation at this point, just as a clever tactician should.

"That depends," answered Brand doubtfully, a trifle weakly, sinking thoughtfully into a chair beside a table.

Bartelmy detected at once the note of doubt and weakness in Brand's reply and questioned to himself what it might portend.

"On what?" asked the judge carefully, trying to analyze the mental processes of his opponent, who stared at him across the table.

Brand spoke deliberately, in low voice.

"On whether you're willing to meet me halfway."

Bartelmy's hopes immediately surged high. Ha, as plain a bid for a price as he had ever heard, and he had heard them before. He gazed, reassured, at the young man's earnest face. Ha, how skillful he was, this young Brand! How he had deceived every one! Yes, he was just like some of the other reformers the judge had met—just like some of his political friends who started to clean up certain conditions, only to be retained to let them exist as they were. But Brand was the cleverest one of the lot by far, and probably he was to divide the proceeds of this bribe with Nolan. Oh, they were a cunning pair! Had even fooled Dupuy, who thought them dangerous. And what a son-in-law Brand would make! Yes, he could have Judith; he was worthy to possess the reigning beauty of a great city. So argued to himself the false judge, and he said:

"Of course I am willing to meet you halfway, but it all depends on whether we understand each other."

"Your decision was doubtless of some value to you, and if I am willing to keep silent about its antecedent circumstances then—Brand looked the judge in the eye expectantly.

Bartelmy felt relieved. He felicitated himself on the fact that his judgment had been correct.

"Yes; you"—He halted.

"Why?" Brand paused.

"Well?" queried the judge irritably.

"There you are," responded Brand simply, his eyes meeting those of the jurist.

Bartelmy glanced cautiously at the editor, seeking for signs of deception, of a trap, but he found them not.

"Mr. Brand, what do you want?" he asked sharply.

"What's it worth to you?"

dear. You know we're going to the opera." He stepped back toward the library. "Mr. Brand, I'll see you again before you leave."

There was a moment's embarrassed silence between Judith and Wheeler Brand as the judge disappeared.

"How do you do, Mr. Brand?" she weakly asked.

"How do you do, Miss Bartelmy?" His manner was awkward and strained. A moment of embarrassed silence.

"I haven't seen you all winter." She placed her hands on the back of a chair near a settee.

"No; I haven't been anywhere. I've been kept pretty close at work." He paused. "Won't you sit down?"

She moved to the left and occupied the settee. After a few moments of silence she said:

"It's strange I haven't seen you all winter. I suppose it will be another hundred years before I see you again."

Brand looked intently at her.

"It won't be if you wish to see me any sooner, Judith," and, thus speaking, he leaned over the back of the settee toward the girl he loved.

"Why, of course I wish—er—You were having a talk with father when I came in, weren't you?"

"Yes," rising and stepping back from her.

"Wheeler, come here," the girl asked softly. "I want to talk to you." He moved to a chair close by her side. "Aren't you beginning to realize that you may have been a bit headstrong?" she said tenderly, looking into his eyes. "I'm afraid you are getting in very deep. Your friends, most of them, have been patient with you so far, but there's a limit, you know, and you'll lose them."

"I'm sorry."

"Oh, Wheeler"—she was intensely in earnest—"is it worth while to let them go just for an idea?"

"A man must act according to his light, Judith."

"And a woman according to hers."

Perhaps you don't realize it, but that's what I've been trying to do. You know I've been alone a great deal of my life. I've had more responsibility than most girls. I've had to decide things for myself and the younger ones and do the best I could for all of us."

"Yes, I know that. There's nobody like you, Judith."

"I'm glad if you think that."

"I'll always think that, Judith," he exclaimed passionately. "And I'll always feel all that I've lost."

"Haven't you brought it on yourself?" she asked quickly.

Brand seized both her hands, and in a tempest of emotion, long suppressed, he rose and bent over her.

"Oh, dearest, can't we have this one moment?"—he was aroused to a pitch she had never seen him reach before—"even if we never have another, without thinking of anything except—except each other?" He seated himself close to her.

"Wheeler, I've a little story I want to tell you," she said fondly yet sadly.

when it was really worth twice that sum to a man of the United States judge's wealth and standing. Why, he had originally planned to give Brand twice that sum as a wedding present when he married Judith.

"Mr. Brand," the judge declared, "I will call at your office tonight at 9 o'clock. Judith, I am ready to go now."

The couple drew apart in confusion. She walked away slowly from her lover, her eyes wet with tears. She went out of the room with her father, leaving Wheeler Brand standing in the middle of the room, overcome by the unconquerable sorrow that filled his soul.

The towering figure of Nolan appeared from the library. He stepped toward the editor.

"Well, did you put it through?" he asked.

Brand threw back his head, and his misery was imprinted in every line of his face. Yet by superhuman will power he forced his voice into steadiness as he said:

"Yes—I put it through."

CHAPTER IX.

AT 9 o'clock in the managing editor's room in the Advance building Wheeler Brand and three other men, Howard Hartley, Jeff Thorne, staff reporters, and Bill, their much browbeaten understudy, were industriously at work. At one side of the office diagonally from the managing editor's desk was a high mahogany desk which backed against a wooden partition which cut off a small room used as a "morgue," the place where newspaper and magazine clippings are kept for reference.

Through the partition a round hole about five inches in diameter had been cut with a handsaw, and on a table in the morgue a camera had been rested with the telescopic protuberance containing the lens projecting through the hole in the partition into a private mail box directly above the desk. The door of this box, into which were placed letters arriving for the managing editor during his absence, had been unlocked. A line of shoe thread had been fastened to the door of the box and extended down behind the desk to the floor and across to the left hand side of Brand's desk. A slight tug on the thread would cause the door of the mail box to open, exposing to the lens Brand's desk, his chair and another chair which had been placed at the right of the desk next to the telephone.

For several minutes the mysterious preparations went on. Just what they meant no one but Brand could tell, and he was strangely silent, except as to directing what should be done.

Hartley was anxious to make certain that the lens aimed directly at Brand's desk. He measured the line with his eye.

"Get it?" called Jeff.

"No, not yet. Wait a minute," Howard answered, dodging around quickly toward the little "morgue." "I haven't got the focus right yet. Hold on!"

"I put it through."

a beginner, some valuable point which the now managing editor never forgotten.

"Tell him to come in," ordered. He reached for the office telephone and called the night city editor. Patriot has got the town skin shipping," he said. "Do you who's doing it for them? Well, I you'd better hire him."

Joe Dillon wandered in.

"Good evening, Mr. Brand," he weakly. Durkin, who had sum him, followed him in.

"Well, Joe, what is it?"

"Wait a minute, Durkin. story for us, Joe?" queried Brand pathetically.

Dillon staggered forward.

"Better sit down," cautioned. "Same old story, eh?"

"No. I'm hungry."

"Durkin, go get one hot roast sandwich and a big pot of black fee and see that he gets them."

"Yes, sir." The lad sped away dexterously catching a quarter Brand tossed him.

"I wish I was going in there to with the boys instead of eating my grub," began Dillon plaintive know you mean all right, Mr. I've tried and tried again to fl off, but it's useless. I can't. I late. I'm a dead one. The hard the five cent whisky, has got me never heard how this thing s! did you, Mr. Brand? If it been for my wife—

"Oh, cut it out!" cried Brand. Dillon shambled out of the room.

Downs hurried in. He had a night editor when the shakedown occurred at the time of Brand's position.

"Young Bobbie Doolittle pl again for speeding," he rattle "Three show girls in the auto. 'em lit up. Bobbie weeping b the girls had to miss the theatre his mother's at me all even! keep it out. What'll I do?"

Brand leaned back and smiled. "Well, it was on her account w out his partial elopement wit French maid and the time he the head waiter at the St. Honor in lieu of a tip, and I guess—well, this one. It may help brace him.

"Oh, and that disappearance reminded Downs. "The girl's back—old gag, visiting her friend Jersey, but she's been off on the case circuit all right."

"Home now?" jerked the married editor.

"Yep."

"Think she'll stay there?"

"She might."

"Well, she can't if we print it let's forget it."

"But we've had a man on it days," persisted Downs. "We only paper that's got it."

"Well, we won't be the one to her down," pronounced Brand, to his head away to end the conversation.

"All right, just as you say."

The telephone bell rang. Brand off the receiver.

"Hello! Tell Mr. Dupuy I'm I he cried after taking the message.

"What? Send him in. That Downs. See that they take c! Dillon, will you?"

The night editor nodded in affirmative and gazed rather cur at Brand as he went out.

Dupuy came into Brand's office a most circumspect and deferential dressed in evening clothes, ca his silk hat in his hand and simply, his eyes meeting those of the jurist.

Bartelmy glanced cautiously at the editor, seeking for signs of deception, of a trap, but he found them not.

"Mr. Brand, what do you want?" he asked sharply.

"What's it worth to you?"

"I would prefer you to set the figure."

"No."

"How about $10,000?" asked the judge.

"Yes," agreed Brand, rising—"in cash tonight."

"Rather short notice for such a sum," protestingly. "Where shall I see you?"

"At my office."

"Your office—the Advance! No, no. I prefer you to come to my chambers about noon tomorrow. We shall be quite private there."

"I can't wait that long for it, judge. I've got to have it tonight."

"Oh, is it something of that sort? Well, then, come to my house after dinner."

"But I've got to be at my office," insisted the editor.

"I hardly like to go there, Mr. Brand."

"That's up to you, judge. But if you don't come the story goes to press tonight. Well?" with a rising inflection.

"I"—

Judith Bartelmy entered.

"Will you come now, papa?" she asked.

"Just a moment, my dear. I intend to ask Dupuy to dine with us."

"Oh, can't you take him to the club?" she pouted.

"That wouldn't be convenient, my dearest, can't we have this one moment?"—he was aroused to a pitch she had never seen him reach before—"even if we never have another, without thinking of anything except—except each other?" He seated himself close to her.

"Wheeler, I've a little story I want to tell you," she said fondly, yet sadly. She spoke as one pleading in a vital cause. "Once upon a time there was a girl, and she rather liked a somewhat gloomy young man. But one night something happened and then—they didn't speak for a long time—oh, a very long time. But there were other young men, and one of them has asked to call tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock. He was very serious about it. You see, the girl has been waiting so long that she's beginning to be afraid—afraid that—er— Oh, Wheeler, why won't you drop it all? It's not too late!"

She rose to her feet, still with her hands in his, and in another moment he stood beside her. He threw both his arms around her and held her close to his bosom.

"Judith," he whispered passionately to her.

"Why don't you call tomorrow at 4?" was her response.

As they stood there in fond embrace, her lips raised to his, Judge Bartelmy appeared at the extreme end of the room. He gave a sudden start as he saw their oblivion to all else but themselves. His cold blue eyes shone with the satisfaction that filled him. He had done a good day's work, he congratulated himself. He had arranged to buy Brand's silence for $10,000

Brand, but he was anxious to make certain that the lens aimed directly at Brand's desk. He measured the line with his eye.

"Get it?" called Jeff.

"No, not yet. Wait a minute," Howard answered, dodging around quickly toward the little "morgue." "I haven't got the focus right yet. Hold on!"

Jeff lighted a match, held it up and stood between the two chairs.

"How's that?" he cried.

The answering voice came back.

"Yes; that's the very thing. It's all right now."

Brand stepped forward from a corner of the room from whence he had been watching the final preparations for the strange event that was to occur.

"Are you all set now, boys?" he asked. "Is your camera in the right place for the flashlight?"

"Yes, sir!" cried Jeff and Howard simultaneously.

"The flashlight is planted here, sir," said Howard, pointing to a narrow pan

"I'm hungry."

in a shadowed spot on top of the mahogany desk and close to the lens.

"Have you tested this?" asked Brand.

"Yes, sir."

"Be careful, sir, or you'll explode the flash," warned Jeff as Brand lighted a match to ascertain the location of the powder.

"Go into room 4, boys, and wait till I send for you," directed Brand.

Jeff and Howard went out. Brand went to his desk as the office boy, Durkin, entered.

"Joe Dillon's here," said the lad.

"Drunk?"

"Just one over."

"Broke?"

"Sure!" The boy grinned.

Dillon, one of the "has-beens" characteristic of the type that prey on the newspaper men at night in the big cities, would ordinarily have received short shrift from a busy man like Brand, but Dillon, an ex-newspaper reporter, had once given Brand, when

The night editor nodded in the affirmative and gazed rather cur at Brand as he went out.

Dupuy came into Brand's office a most circumspect and deferential. Dressed in evening clothes, with his silk hat in his hand and with boutonniere of hothouse violets in lapel, he gave every indication of being the society figure that his and wealth had made possible for

The lawyer lobbyist walked directly to the desk at which Brand was seated. In reply to the managing editor's salutation he bowed stiffly and looked forward over the desk.

Several moments elapsed before Dupuy spoke. He was trying to open words in the most judicious language, and well he might be when one considers the nature of the errand.

"The gentleman who was coming to see you tonight," at last he said fully, "has had to go to the opera with his daughter. He has asked me to come in his stead."

An expression of complete bewilderment spread over the other's face.

"A gentleman? What gentleman interrogated."

Dupuy was momentarily nonplussed.

"Why, the gentleman who—ah, whom you made an appointment for at 8 o'clock this evening—here—at your office."

Brand still refused to show his

"I should be very glad to hear you have to say, Mr. Dupuy, frankly, I don't know what you're driving at."

The visitor was annoyed. He positive that Bartelmy would not let him on a wild goose errand. Still the judge and Brand had come to terms regarding the silence of the advance as to the Lansing Iron case. The editor was playing him now, he knew—dangling him with verbal hook to tantalize him.

"Oh, come, you know who I mean, Bartelmy!" snapped the judge's cable tool.

"Judge Bartelmy?" exclaimed Brand in surprise. "Well, what about him?"

Dupuy produced a card, which the editor glanced at.

"What's this?" he asked. The read: "Dupuy will represent me, what?"

He started to put the card in his pocket.

"Perhaps you would better let me have that so I can return it to him," Dupuy reached eagerly for the card, which Brand slowly extended to him. "This refers to that transaction which you and he were speaking of last afternoon," continued the lawyer.

Brand laughed loudly.

"Well, Dupuy, I'm a poor hand at guessing riddles. I give it up. What's the answer?"

The lawyer became impatient.

"The transaction involving the investment—of a certain—sum of money," he explained haltingly.

"A business deal I was going to make with the judge?" in amazement.

"Precisely."

"If I had any business with the judge, Dupuy, I would prefer to do it with the judge."

"But I am his plenipotentiary."

"Mhm, mhm!" grunted Brand nonchalantly.

"You are rather unreasonable, Brand."

A wearied and hopeless-looking man began to show in the lawyer's face.

The young editor noted this and solved to temporize with and exasperate this man whom he despised above all others, even above Bartelmy himself. Bartelmy, believed Brand, even if he was a scoundrel, actually had superior mental ability, was a brilliant thinker and acted boldly in many of his dishonest transactions on the bench. But Dupuy—he was to Brand the banger-on, the skulker, the vandal jackal that devoured corpses in the night that braver animals had fought and killed by day. His eyes blinked in the light, did Dupuy's. It was in the underground runways that he coursed the swiftest. And as these thoughts sped through his brain the editor looked away absently.

Dupuy came hot on his trail. "Shall I make an appointment with him for you, say, tomorrow morning?" he anxiously queried of the newspaper man.

"I don't care."

"Then I'll do it!" he said decidedly and moved away from the desk. "And —er—" He saw that Brand was still indifferent. He returned to the desk. "Things will remain stationary until then?" he asked.

"Things never remain stationary in a newspaper office," responded the managing editor laconically.

"What I mean is that there would be no story—er—about him until you see him."

"A business deal." "I don't know what you are talking about."

"Can we let it go over for one day?"

"I don't know what you are talking about."

"You insist on his coming here personally?"

"Of course I don't. I don't insist on anything."

"How much time have we got?"

"He knows all about that."

Dupuy was immeasurably relieved at this last remark. It was the first time that Brand had indicated that Bartelmy and he had had an engagement.

"Mr. Brand, I can almost assure you that my client will keep his appointment." The lawyer's voice rang out firmly.

The editor nodded carelessly toward the speaker, who spun on his heel and speedily strode away. The telephone bell sounded. Brand bent over quickly.

"Hello! Who—oh, yes, Mr. Nolan."

No, sir, not yet, but I think we'll have him landed all right in about half an hour. Please don't worry about it. It'll be all right. Just go away and hide somewhere, for they'll be doing the baby act as quick as I trap him, and you'll be squeezed to death before we get to press. You promised me this chance. You want to know what's going on? Well, where will you be? Triple 3 Plaza. Get off the wire, Miss Stowe. Yes, Mr. Nolan, they cut in on us. I'll call you up later."

BRAND hung up the telephone receiver with an anxious expression on his face. "Nolan must keep away from this," he muttered tensely. "Let him take a train

"Yes, sir," agreed Powell faintly. "People haven't time for poetry," commented Brand.

"That's what I've been trying to tell Powow," put in Sylvester. "He was born after his time."

"How would you like to be a reporter?" asked the editor.

Powell's eyes gleamed with a sickly color that showed that he was enthused.

"A reporter? Oh, yes, sir!" he said. Brand took down the phone.

"Hello! Give me night city editor, please. Hello! That you? I've got a cub here named Powell. Please give him a week's trial. Report to city editor."

"Where is he, sir?" asked Powell, bewildered.

"You're a reporter now. Find out."

"Yes, sir." He started toward the hall door.

"Over here, Powow!" cried Sylvester, leading him in the opposite direction.

Joe Dillon now added to the managing editor's troubles by again coming into the office.

"Thank you, Mr. Brand," he began. "Could you spare me a little car fare?"

Brand tossed him a quarter. "Never mind now," he said. "Say, Joe, go out with that cub tonight. It will give him a taste of the life."

"That all may be," responded Brand, rising to end the conversation, "but the Advance doesn't issue passes to the stage entrance."

Sylvester's jaw fell in his astonishment at this unexpected blow, and after a moment, after vainly endeavoring to find appropriate words for a reply, he went out of the room.

Brand was impatient because of the precious time that had been wasted. He had work to do and little time in which to do it, and it was the most important work he had ever done in his life.

He sent the office boy to bring the two reporters, Howard and Jeff. Speaking to Miss Stowe, the "central" of the Advance's private telephone system, he said: "Do not put anybody else on this wire until you hear from me, no matter how long it takes. Understand? "I scarcely think we can do that sort of thing in the Advance. We don't print pictures of chorus girls unless there's some good story about them—lost jewels, barred from a hotel on account of a dog, divorce or—"

Sylvester broke in relievedly, "Oh, she's been divorced!"

"Has she! When?"

"Last year."

"That's dead. Wait till her next. She doesn't go in."

"Why—why—won't you do it?" stammered the young man, who, deeply appreciating the fact that he was his father's son—yes, indeed—failed to comprehend how any employee on the Advance could refuse him anything.

night editor nodded in the affirmative and gazed rather curiously and as he went out.

ny came into Brand's office with a circumspect and deferential air. He was in evening clothes, carrying a hat in his hand and with a smile of hothouse violets in his face. He gave every indication of being a society figure that his name alone had made possible for him. A lawyer lobbyist walked directly to the desk at which Brand was seated. He bowed stiffly and leaned over the desk.

Several moments elapsed before Dupuy spoke. He was trying to put his words in the most judicious way, and well he might hesitate, for one considers the nature of his brand.

"A gentleman who was coming to see you tonight," at last he said carelessly, "has had to go to the opera with his daughter. He has asked me to see you in his stead."

Brand's expression of complete bewilderment spread over the other's face. "Gentleman? What gentleman?" he asked.

Dupuy was momentarily nonplused. "The gentleman who—ah, with you made an appointment for 9 o'clock this evening—here—at your office."

Brand still refused to show his hand. He would be very glad to hear what the man had to say, Mr. Dupuy, but, y, I don't know what you are after."

Visitor was annoyed. He was sure that Bartelmy would not send him on a wild goose errand. Surely Judge and Brand had come to regarding the silence of the Adair as to the Lansing Iron case deal.

The editor was playing with him, he knew—dangling him on a hook to tantalize him.

"Come, you know who I mean—my!" snapped the judge's despot.

"Bartelmy!" exclaimed Brand. "Well, what about him?"

Dupuy produced a card, which he glanced at.

"That's this?" he asked. Then he said, "Dupuy will represent me." In Brand started to put the card in his pocket. "Perhaps you would better let me see that so I can return it to him."

Dupuy reached eagerly for the card, Brand slowly extended to him. He refers to that transaction of yours and he was speaking to you."

"continued the lawyer. Brand laughed loudly.

"All right, Dupuy, I'm a poor hand at riddles. I give it up. What's the answer?"

The lawyer became impatient. "The transaction involving the—ah—investment—of a certain—sum of money," he explained haltingly. "The business deal I was going into with the judge?" in amazement.

"Exactly."

"I had any business with the Dupuy, I would prefer to do it with the judge."

"I am his plenipotentiary."

"m, mhm!" grunted Brand negatively.

"They are rather unreasonable," said a weary and hopeless look to show in the lawyer's visage. The young editor noted this and re-

CHAPTER X.

BRAND hung up the telephone receiver with an anxious expression on his face. "Nolan must keep away from this," he muttered tensely. "Let him take a train or go to sleep or bury himself if he wants to. If Bartelmy or Dupuy gets hold of him after I've shown my hand there'll be the merry d-d to pay, and if they find him they might succeed in coaxing—I wonder if Nolan will stick; I wonder if Nolan will stick." he kept repeating over and over to himself.

The noise of voices raised in indignation broke in upon him from the outer hall at his right. "Oh, that's a chestnut," some one cried; "he's always out, always when I come."

The editor glanced around and saw Sylvester Nolan leading in his friend Powell, the poet.

"You're not out, are you, old man?" asked young Nolan of Brand. "Who's that fly duck that tried to keep me from coming in?"

"I'm sorry, Nolan; I'm very busy tonight, and you'll have to excuse me. I'm very busy."

"Brandy, old boy, I came in on business. Want to get a job for my friend Powell here. He's a poet." He dragged the wan eyed rhymester up to Brand's desk.

The editor looked Powell over. "We don't carry poets on the payroll," he grunted.

"But just look at this one. I'll show you, let Mr. Brand see your ode to the opening of the Omaha exposition. He went in the competition with this."

Powell handed the poem to Brand. "And I see he came out with it," snorted the newspaper man.

you something to think about, and you can show him as much in a night as he'd learn in a month alone. Mr. Dillon, allow me to present you to Mr. Sylvester Nolan. Mr. Dillon broke me into the business," said the editor to the newspaper owner's son.

Sylvester drew a ponderous wad of bills from his pocket and offered the top one to the old "down and outer."

"You want to handle my friend Powwow with gloves," advised Sylvester. "He's just full of temperament."

The old newspaper man indignantly refused the money which young Nolan held out to him and plunged out of the office.

The poet stood a mute witness to the proceedings.

"Go after him!" commanded Brand. "Thank you, sir," and Powell darted frightenedly after Dillon.

"Who is that old joker?" asked Sylvester of the editor.

"He was the best reporter that the Advance ever had."

"What's the matter with him?"

"Booze."

"Too bad! Well, a fellow ought to learn to control himself," remarked Sylvester pompously. "Now, Brandy, old boy, I want to ask you just one more favor tonight, in reference to a little actress friend of mine, Miss Gueneviere McKenzie."

"Oh—come—don't!"

"Run her picture in a prominent place, won't you?" Sylvester handed Brand a photo. "Miss Gueneviere McKenzie. Don't you know her? She's in the second row at the Tyroll, and it's a darn shame. I've got a libretto for her later on. Can't you help her out and get her a small part now?"

"I'm afraid that is hardly in my line."

"Now, boys, understand what I want you to do. You've got to take, word for word, a conversation I'm going to have here. Go in room 4. You, Jeff, take the receiver."

"Yes, sir."

"And you, Howard, take the extension. Thus you will each hear what is said. Keep it glued to your best ear and take down every word you hear tonight between Judge Bartelmy and me. The judge will sit in the chair at the right of my desk. I will be in my own chair. The telephone will thus be midway between us. Whatever words he and I say will be said almost directly over the mouthpiece of the phone. Now, you see what I am going to do!"

FEEDING CATTLE FOR THE MARKET

In spite of the important effect of values at marketing time there are a few factors that must be kept in mind by the cattle feeder, says the Iowa Homestead. For instance, steers of poor quality that could under no circumstances be made into prime finished cattle should not be carried to a high finish. The last hundred pounds of gain required to make a steer prime are the most expensive, and the increase in the selling price must be correspondingly larger to secure profit.

Windsor Bell, herewith illustrated, was first in her class and champion female Shorthorn at the recent royal agricultural show at Bristol, England. Windsor Bell is owned by his majesty King George. This Shorthorn breed of beef cattle is very popular in England, as it is in this country and indeed wherever quick maturing and high grade beef is valued. The Shorthorn stands in the first rank of beef producing breeds and is excelled by no others in impressing its good qualities on common or scrub cattle.

from the additional finish. Obviously, therefore, it will not be profitable ordinarily to put on this high priced finish when there is every assurance that it will not command a high price in the market. On the other hand, on a well bred steer this last hundred pounds may make him a market topper, and the result in this case may justify the high finish, though the latter part of this may be made at a high cost.

The relative supply and cost of grain and roughage to be disposed of are factors which should in a measure determine the length of the feeding period. Cattle for short feeding are usually in higher condition at the beginning of the feeding period, and therefore the proportion of grain to roughage consumed is greater than with cattle fed for a longer period. Where feeders wish to dispose of large quantities of roughage the feeding period is necessarily longer than when a larger proportion of concentrates to roughage is to be fed. In a general way, therefore, it may be said that the low grade steer should be used for a short feed only, while in the case of the well bred, fleshy steer a high finish will usually bring the surest and largest profits.

In the case of the individual who raises his own feeders and carries them to a finish there is only one type that can be handled at a profit on high

CAUSE OF BAD FLAVORS IN BUTTER

Bad flavors in butter come from two sources. They may be absorbed from odors, and they may be caused by the presence of bacteria.

Odors may get into the milk in the barn, coming from the cow, the milker, the utensils or from the food or dust, says the Kansas Industrialist. The second source is in the milk house, from the separator or containing vessels. If the separating is done in the barn, so much the worse for the cream; if done in the kitchen, food flavors are absorbed. The churn is the third source of bad flavor. When not properly cared for it soon grows musty. A churn that is not well cleaned before and after using affects the taste of butter.

Butter churned too soft cannot be properly washed and so contains a great deal of buttermilk. Buttermilk contains, besides water, the solids casein, albumen and milk sugar. Milk sugar is used as a food by the ferments which are secreted by the organisms. These ferments destroy casein

The American Guernsey Cattle club was the first organization of its kind to establish an advanced registry on the basis of a year's production of butter fat. No animal of any age can get into this advanced register that does not produce more than 600 pounds of butter fat in one year. The average of the thirty-five leading Guernseys in the 1912 list was over 700 pounds of butter fat. Not everybody can own such cows because they do not exist in sufficient numbers. Yeska Sunburst, the Guernsey cow shown, is one of the good ones. She is owned by H. D. Griswold of Wisconsin.

and albumen in the buttermilk contained in the butter and so cause rancid or putrid butter.

Fermentation begun in cream does not cease in butter. It may go far enough to break up the butter fats, causing ill flavored butter.

Odors get into the butter, or they may get into the milk or cream and then be imparted to the butter. The greatest source of bad flavor is from cream that has not been properly cared for. Milk, cream or butter absorbs odors if kept in a fruit or vegetable cellar or in a musty, ill ventilated room. Even musty walls or ill ventilated caves impart peculiar flavors. One of the most common disagreeable flavors is known as "weedy." The cause is laid to feed, but in most cases it is due to rapidly growing organisms which get into the cream from unclean surroundings.

To prevent bad flavors in butter great care must be used in milking, in handling the milk and cream and in making the butter. Everything used must be kept in a sanitary condition. Milk in a clean, well ventilated barn,

NOT THE POOREST CORN IN THE SILO

One of the greatest advantages of the silo is its ability to make a very profitable feed out of a crop that would not amount to much if fed in the usual ways, says the Iowa Homestead. For this reason farmers are falling into the habit of putting their poorest crop in the silo. Where a farmer has corn that yields from thirty-five to fifty bushels to the acre and another field that for some reason yields but fifteen to twenty-five bushels, he has found, if he has had a silo on his farm for any length of time, that it is more profitable to put the poorest corn in the silo and husk out the rest for the crib. This does not mean that silage made from the poorer corn is just as good as the silage would have been from the better corn, but it does mean that the better corn does not make silage enough better to pay for using the best yielding corn of the farm for filling the silo.

Even though the grain yield of a corn crop runs only from fifteen to twenty-five bushels to the acre, or even as low as ten to twelve bushels,

Maggie Doon II, a Jersey cow owned by the Tennessee experiment station, bids fair to make a record that will rank among the best for the breed. Last year as a heifer she produced 6,672.8 pounds of milk containing 417.6 pounds of butter. When she freshened this year she was put on test. During the first sixty-nine days of this test Maggie Doon II produced nearly 2,500 pounds of milk containing 160 pounds of butter. Her best day's milk production was 42.5 pounds of milk testing 6.38 per cent butter fat, equivalent to 3.2 pounds of 85 per cent butter. During one month she produced 1,028.6 pounds of milk containing 76.8 pounds of butter, an average of practically two and one-half pounds of butter per day.

there is still a great feeding value in the entire crop, putting fodder and grain together, if it is harvested at the time when the feeding value of both fodder and grain is the greatest. Always, before the days of the silo, the problem was to keep the feeding value in the crop—in other words, to preserve it. When the fall and winter season is dry we have found that our shocked corn made much better feed. This was because it was preserved better, the weather not damaging the fodder as much as is usually the case.

Now, with the silo one is able to preserve all the feeding value that is in the crop at the time of harvesting, so with even a light grain yield there is still much value in the corn crop, probably more in a corn crop of light yield than in a crop of heavy yield than the fore, it may be said that the low grade steer should be used for a short feed only, while in the case of the well bred, fleshy steer a high finish will usually bring the surest and largest profits.

In the case of the individual who raises his own feeders and carries them to a finish there is only one type that can be handled at a profit on high priced land—namely, the steer that inherits fleshing tendencies. Such cattle are the outcome of clearly defined breed characteristics, having in color and conformation the stamp of one of the great beef breeds. It does not discount the sound doctrine which requires that corn belt farmers raise only a good type of feeders to say that when feeding cattle are put into the feed lot from outside sources it is, under certain circumstances, entirely practical to use steers of rather inferior grade if these are bought right and brought to a nicely warmed up condition on the cheaper sorts of feed raised on corn belt farms.

Hogs Need Much Water.

Water is as essential in the production of gains on a hog as is grain. If grain fell from the sky and we had to grow water our estimation of their value would be reversed. For the reason that water is free and everywhere available the failure to supply plenty of it fresh for the hogs in summer is absolutely inexcusable. With two inches of fat all over his body the hog does not need 90 degrees temperature to keep comfortable. In summer he suffers much from the heat, and his greatest relief is in water. It thins his blood, cools him off and makes him happy. A happy hog grunts. A grunting hog is contented. A contented hog is profitable.

better, the weather not damaging the fodder as much as is usually the case.

Now, with the silo one is able to preserve all the feeding value that is in the crop at the time of harvesting, so with even a light grain yield there is still much value in the corn crop, probably more in a corn crop of light yield than in a crop of heavy yield than the difference in bushels to the acre would seem to indicate, a yield of twenty bushels to the acre, for instance, being worth more than half as much as a yield of forty bushels. This is because the feeding value of the fodder is very nearly the same in either case. For this reason, and more particularly for stock not on full feed, silo owners are finding it the best practice to put their poorest corn in the silo.

Feed Rack For Hogs.

A very handy feed rack for hogs is easily made. Build a trough a foot wide and four inches deep for the bottom of the rack. This trough will catch the leaves of the hay. Nail four uprights, three feet long, one to each corner of the trough. Fasten the back uprights to the fence so as to keep the rack in place and make it handier to fill. Nail a board between the tops of the front uprights and to this board fasten the strips, which should be from six to seven inches apart, and run from it to the center of the trough.

Alfalfa hay should always be kept in this rack during the winter. In the summer fresh alfalfa can be used if the hogs are not on pasture. It is surprising to find how much hay a hog will eat, and hay is cheaper than corn.—Kansas Industrialist.

Hog Mulch For Orchard.

A Michigan man uses hog mulch and handles it very successfully. At least, he calls it a hog mulch. His land is not particularly good. He cultivates in the spring and seeds Canada field peas, sometimes using a small quantity of oats. When the peas are pretty well formed he turns in 200 hogs. They do not touch the trees, and by the use of movable fences he has been able to switch them from one part of the orchard to another until the entire crop is fed down. He furnishes his hogs with a little corn and then turns them to market as a byproduct of his orchard. The orchard is well cultivated by the rooting of the hogs, and a large amount of humus is available to plow under the following spring.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Sealing the Silo With Water.

Hoard's Dairyman says that the best way to seal a silo is to put a considerable quantity of water into the silo after it is filled with silage. This way of sealing a silo was discovered by accident, a heavy rain on an uncovered silo furnishing the water seal. It was feared that much silage would be ruined by the water, but when the owner began using the silage he found a very thin layer of silage rotted, whereas before the rotted layer had been many times as thick. Now this owner always seals his silo by covering the silage with water.

Stock Ought to Have Grain.

Adding a little grain to the roughage ration of even the stock herds not only saves roughage, but by furnishing a greater variety of feed better digestion will be promoted and more nourishment obtained than from a like amount of a single article of feed.

Insert this apparatus about an inch in a bowl of water, and the water will rise between the plates and form a small geometrical figure called a meniscus.

KEEP HOUSE COOL

Ways of Preventing the Summer Home From Becoming Hot.

LET IN THE GOOD NIGHT AIR.

It is Particularly Important That Attic and Cellar Should Have Proper and Sufficient Ventilation—Neglect of This Causes Trouble.

Keeping the house cool in summer is not always an easy problem to solve. People who have large houses and money enough to equip them with electric fans and other appliances can, of course, keep very comfortable, but it is more difficult to manage it in small houses.

Windows must be shaded with blinds, shutters or awnings and be well screened. All the heavy hangings should be removed and where possible the carpets should be taken up and cool colors, such as white, gray, light greens and blues, should take the place of the warmer colors. Then white muslin curtains soften the light, though many people object to even that much drapery.

The coolest hours of summer are the night hours. Therefore the night air should be allowed to circulate freely through every part of the house. The best circulation is obtained by having windows open at the top and bottom instead of entirely at the bottom. This lets out the hot air and lets in the cool. When this method is followed put the screen in the lower sash of one window of each room and in the upper sash of another.

As it is important that sunlight, too, should enter the house at some time of the day, open all the blinds and windows in the early morning for a little while. Then darken the house for the rest of the day.

It is especially important that the attic and cellar should have proper ventilation. In the former a skylight or window should be kept open night and day; except, of course, when it rains. The cellar windows should be open only at night when it is comparatively cool. Open them at sundown and close them at 8 o'clock in the morning. Neglect of this method of airing the cellar causes a great deal of trouble during the hot weather. If the windows are not closed during the heat of the day the warm, moisture-laden air enters the cellar and condenses on walls, pipes, metals, etc. The colder the surface the greater will be the amount of moisture that will condense upon it, and a few days of neglect will make the cellar so damp that it will not be a suitable place for keeping food.

A GREAT BELIEVER IN "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Well Known Ontario Merchant Has Faith Because "Fruit-a-tives" Cured Him

MR. JAMES DOBSON

BRONTE, ONT., MARCH 1st, 1912.

"Fruit-a-tives has made a complete cure in my case of Rheumatism, that had at least five years standing before I commenced the treatment. The trouble was principally in my right hip and shoulder, the pain from it was almost unendurable. Not being able to sleep on that side, if I chanced to turn on my right side while asleep, the pain would immediately awaken me. This kept up until I started taking 'Fruit-a-tives'. I started by taking one or two tablets with a large glass of water, in the morning before breakfast and experienced pronounced relief very shortly. After a continued treatment for about six months, I was cured and am now in firstclass health. This, I attribute to my persistent use of 'Fruit-a-tives' and I heartily recommend your remedy to any Rheumatic sufferers."

A Proverb.

"Haste makes waste," the sages say. It's a proverb old, yet true each day. If our work is done with haste, Something will surely go to waste. Careful movements are what tell, A hurried task is never done well.

Let's read the proverb another way: "Make haste! Don't waste!" it seems to say. Make haste to do whatever is right. Don't waste the precious moments bright. Read either way, the words are true. They're worth a trial, I think. Don't you? —Youth's Companion.

The total assessment of the town for the year is $1,355,487.00, an increase over last year of $65,914, principally made up by increases in income assessment, a few increases in ordinary assessment and some undervaluations discovered in previous assessments. The population of Napanee is 2893, an increase of nearly 200 over the 1912 roll. School children between the ages of 5 and 21, 669, between the ages of 5 and 16, 533 and between the ages of 8 and 14, 342. Madden, (Napanee) for no order made for change of residence of child. Mr. Ruttan at his request allowed to retire from executorship and as trustee upon passing his accounts. Costs of motion out of estate. "If I were to see the little girl at two in my chambers, she might be sufficiently developed to exercise a fairly wise discretion," said Mr. Justice Latchford at Osgoode Hall, after hearing a continued argument on whether guardian and solicitor, G. F. Ruttan, should be permitted to send his pretty ward, Edna May Vanslyck, aged 13, to the Bishop Strachan school at Toronto. The father died five years ago, and her mother a month or so ago. At present she is staying with her paternal relatives, while Mr. Ruttan desires that she should live with her mother's people when not at school. The child now is attending Napanee Public School, and wishes to pass the entrance and attend the High school. A clause in her mother's will says that, if she wishes advanced education, the executor or guardian shall choose the school. It was argued on one side, that she should not be compelled to go to a ladies college against her will. Judge Latchford decided on Friday afternoon that Edna May Varsyck should stay with the people who now have her, that is with her paternal grandparents, Martin Vanslyck, and her three aunts in Napanee. The girl who is thirteen years old, declared she wanted to attend the collegiate and prepare for teaching. The judge considered her bright, honest and intelligent. When the decision was given, her guardian, G. F. Ruttan, K. C., asked to be relieved of his guardianship, and the judge assented when the money of the estate amounting to $9,000 should be handed into court. Mr. Ruttan sought to have the girl sent to Bishop Strachan School.

22 Spratt Ave., Toronto, when Mae Lena, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
Cephas DeFoe, of Marlbank, was united in marriage to Mr. Paul Thos.
Mulliette, C.C., of Toronto, Rev. Dr.
Ockley officiating. The bride looked charming in a navy blue suit with hat to match trimmed with ribbon and white mount and carried a large bouquet of white roses and maiden hair fern. Mrs. T. F. Burley assisted the bride, while Mr. T. F. Burley acted as best man. The groom's gift to the bride was a pearl pendant, to the

and happy life.

Young Girl a Runaway.

Passengers from the late C.N.R.
train on Saturday evening were startled to find a young girl, but fifteen years of age, seated in the waiting room at Deseronto crying pitifully.
One of the lady passengers went to the girl, who told a rather conflicting story of having been approached by some men at the station. She gave her name as Lizzie Brook. The lady's sympathy was aroused and she took her to the Chief of Police. He had at the time a description of a girl who had run away from her home in Trenton. The officers of the Children's Aid took her in charge and communicated with the Chief of Police of Trenton.
The father of the girl, Robert J.
Whittle, came and found her to be his missing daughter Jennie. The two left on the 4.45 train for Trenton.
This is said to be the second or third time she has left home. This time she bought a ticket for Napanee, where, it is said, she stayed overnight at one of the hotels, coming by road to this place next day.
